Corroborating reports that Lieut.-Gen. Masarahu Homma has committed suicide, the War Department today disclosed that Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, conqueror of Singapore, now is in command of the enemy forces opposing Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Philippine defenders.

Recording another lull in activities on Bataan peninsula, the Army's morning communique spoke of "brisk skirmishes" in the vicinity of Digos, on Davao Gulf bordering the southern Philippine island of Mindanao.

Presence of Yamashita in the Philippines indicated the Japanese may be preparing to launch their long-promised onslaught in an effort to crush MacArthur's forces which have held out for more than three months against a vastly superior force.

The War Department yesterday announced it had received information that Gen. Homma had committed hari-kari because of having "lost face" in his failure to conquer MacArthur. Revelation that Gen. Yamashita is now in command appeared to confirm the advice received yesterday.

Gen. Yamashita is considered one of Tokyo's best military tacticians. He was responsible for the drive through Malaya which ended in the surrender of Britain's powerful Singapore base.

Brief mention of fighting in the Davao area indicated the Japanese still do not control the entire area in that important port.

Previously the War Department had stated that large numbers of American and Filipino troops were holding the almost impenetrable northern half of Mindanao, but this was the first disclosure that defenders still are active in the Davao section.

With the fate of Java hidden behind a radio blackout and Japanese pressing toward Australia and further into Burma, new successes for Gen. MacArthur's forces meanwhile made Bataan peninsula the only bright spot in the three-month-old Pacific conflict.

In the latest demonstrations of the best way to check the invasion tide, MacArthur's forces used hidden batteries to smash one-third of a 50-truck convoy moving an estimated 2500 troops toward the Philippine front lines.

About 800 enemy troops were believed to have been killed.

Aussie Planes Smash at Japs

OFFICIAL NEWS

Sydney

March 9 (INS)

The Australian government took stern defensive measures today to impede an expected Japanese attack after Australian planes lashed at the enemy invasion fleet which had landed troops on the northeast coast of New Guinea.

RAAF bombers hammered the Japanese vessels off the New Guinea coast after enemy troops swarmed ashore at Lae and Salamaua. The fliers scored a number of direct hits.

Late today regulations were promulgated in Australia authorizing military authorities throughout the country to carry out wherever necessary complete "scorched earth" destructions of roads, railways, canals, water works, airfields, docks and wharves to prevent them from falling into Japanese hands.

EMERGENCY MEETING

The Jap landings at the northeast New Guinea ports of Salamaua and Lae caused an emergency meeting of the Australian war cabinet and also intense activity among the various defense services.

The public also took a more serious view of the situation and the Sydney Sun commented:

"The Battle of Australia has begun.
"In the coming struggle on our shores there are two great factors for our ultimate success. The first is the support of our allies, particularly the United States.

"The second is our ability and determination to hit the enemy harder than he hits us."

The retaliatory attack on the Jap invasion fleets off New Guinea was announced in an RAAF communique issued at Canberra, which said: "Australian aircraft attacked and scored direct hits on ships of the Japanese invasion fleet off New Guinea."

The special war cabinet session was held to consider action to counter the New Guinea invasion, where the Japs seized the little ports of Salamaua and Lae under

March 9 (AP)

OFFICIAL NEWS

Japanese invaders overrunning the final Dutch citadel of Java have captured the war capital of Bandung, and their imperial headquarters declared today they had forced the unconditional surrender of 93,000 Dutch and 5000 United States, British and Australian troops.

The Dutch stoutly denied there had been any general surrender, but in Adelaide, Australia, Lieut.-Governor-General Hubertus J. Van Yook told of the fall of Bandung.

"But our people are battling on with the resources they have left," he added.

The official Tokyo announcement heard here said the defending troops capitulated near Bandung.

BRITISH QUIT RANGOON, BUT SCORCH CITY

New Delhi, India

March 9 (AP)

The British announced today that their forces were withdrawing from Rangoon, Burma after carrying out essential demolitions.

The official statement said: "Reports from Burma indicate that on March 7 it was decided to withdraw our forces from Rangoon after carrying out essential demolitions."

(The Japanese already had announced the capture of Rangoon.)

Earlier British tank units battled savagely to stave off a Japanese pincer movement directed at cutting off the defenders of Rangoon.

A Japanese patrol of perhaps 100 riflemen was reported unofficially to have slipped across the main road north of Rangoon and Pegu, apparently in an attempt to join forces with native bands operating in the marshes near the Irrawaddy river along Burma's second route to China.

The second road follows the east bank of the Irrawaddy from Rangoon to Pegu, 50 to 70 miles west of the Pegu-Mandalay route.

The Japanese are known to have appealed to discontented native elements, jobless politicians, and petty criminals in an attempt to form a fifth column behind the British lines.

With the removal of civil administration personnel from some areas close to the Japanese advance forces, the invaders are trying to organize pseudo-rebellions.

Eyewitness Story of Biggest U. S. Sea Victory Over Japs

By TOM YARBROUGH

WITH THE U. S. FLEET IN THE PACIFIC, Feb. 20 (Delayed) (AP)—The flame and smoke and thunder of bombs and guns have died away now and the score is in.

It is a magnificent victory for Uncle Sam. Twenty Japanese heavy bombers came out to get us and all but two were shot into the sea. We lost two planes but rescued one pilot. Not a single surface vessel was damaged.

The outstanding fliers were Lieut. Edward Henry "Butch" O'Hare, 28-year-old Missourian, who was credited with assisting in the destruction of at least six enemy planes, and his squadron leader, a 36-year-old native of Arkansas.

The commander of this task force reported that the entire squadron "attacked the enemy with determination and skill and deadly effect."

Two of the 13 Japs shot down were four-motored Japanese scout planes which were shot down by our air patrols before the battle.

(The U. S. Navy communique of March 3 telling of the battle did not mention these two.)

This is an eyewitness account of the recent thunderous engagement between the United States naval and air arms and Japanese bombers in the "Hornets' Nest" of the Japanese mandate islands. It was after that raid that Tokyo sarcastically invited a task force to return to the "Hornets' Nest" in the mandates.

AUSTEN LAKE TELLS HOW LONDON SPILLS 'NEWS' OF U. S. WAR

Exclusive

By AUSTEN LAKE

The American people and press generally agree that this is a time to co-ordinate with our No. 1 ally, Britain, and put aside bickering for the common end of war unity. But to be effective co-ordination must work both ways.

So here comes an instance of a British correspondent attached to the American Asiatic fleet spreading a false report which, through some curious quirk, was cleared by our own naval censorship and allowed to bounce back to London as a "sensational scoop." The yarn was about a mammoth American armada plowing its way through "the southwest Pacific" and "great convoys of ships carrying American troops, pilots, tanks and guns." The author of the article was Walter Farr, staff man of the London Daily Mail. The article made black headlines on every American front page.

Yet now the Navy scotches the story as a fiction from an imaginative brain and says cryptically: "No American correspondent who has covered the same limited ground has found in such coverage anything similar to report."

The Farr story then appears to have been a broad-gauge fake, cleared by a strangely indulgent U. S. Navy censor and relayed via London to the American press.

Farr, date-lining his document "At Sea" and purporting to be in the ward room of a U. S. warship, wrote:

"These massive forces will not only help to defend Australia. They are taking with them large quantities of materials to be used to build the foundation of a great offensive against the Japanese. Every ship in every convoy is a load of concentrated hitting power."

"They are carrying hundreds of the finest pilots America can produce, powerful units trained in landing operations, hardly infantry from the American plains. As the convoys move westward along the closely guarded lifeline to Australia . . . Naval and air battles without parallel in history are developing . . ."

Naval authorities in Washington pooh-poohed the dispatch, revealing that it was not indubitably "At Sea" but filed through normal cable channels at Honolulu after Farr had made a routine voyage on a Navy ship from San Francisco. Washington takes a teapot-tempest

Red Wedge Cuts Nazi Rail Line

OFFICIAL NEWS

MOSCOW, March 9 (AP)—Russian soldiers fighting unceasingly in the snow to weaken the expected German spring offensive were reported today to have captured the city of Sychevka, driving a wedge midway between the Nazi stronghold of Rzhev and Vyazma on the central front.

Dispatches from the wintry battle line told of the sweep of the Red Army into the city 125 miles due west of Moscow after a two-day battle in which it was stated virtually all of the 15,000 men of the German 48th Division were wiped out.

Sychevka is on the 70-mile north-south rail line connecting Rzhev and Vyazma.

The Russians were said to be meeting more and more German reserves on the central front, with Hitler drawing heavily on his strength in the "deep rear."

(The staggering cost Germany is paying in Russia was told in a Berlin dispatch to the Bern, Switzerland, newspaper Der Bund. It reported official Berlin circles acknowledged total German losses of 1,500,000 soldiers since the invasion began last June 22 but said the Germans insisted these losses were "absolutely bearable.")

HITLER'S FIGURES

(Before that the last German word on losses in Russia was a statement by Hitler, on Dec. 11 when he declared war against the United States, that all German losses for the Russian war were "163,314 dead, 371,767 wounded, 33,324 missing.")

(On Dec. 9 the Communist party organ, Pravda, said in Moscow that the Germans had lost approximately 6,000,000 men killed, wounded and captured during the first five months of the war.)

Big steps appeared in the making. Josef Stalin, premier and defense commissar, who has been devoting considerable attention to the central front, was reported personally planning counter measures along the entire line to meet the expected German drive.

$100,000 FIRE RAZES CHURCH AT STOUGHTON

STOUGHTON, March 9.—The 91-year-old First Congregational Church, a Stoughton landmark, was totally destroyed today in a general alarm blaze with $100,000 damage.

Starting in the lower church, flames raced throughout the historic colonial edifice despite efforts of Stoughton and Brockton firemen to quell the blaze.

At the height of the fire, a 185-foot steeple and its half-ton bronze bell came crashing down as fire-fighters scattered to safety.

For a time, embers were carried to nearby buildings but the danger soon passed with a heavy down-pour of rain. Fire Chief Fred Eyr, who repeatedly withdrew his men as huge timbers tumbled in, gave the cause as undetermined.

Among the many spectators at the fire was the pastor, the Rev. Hugh P. Hughes, who said he would call a meeting of the trustees immediately to arrange for a place of meetings until a new church can be built.

Admits Plan To Loot Sugar Warehouse

Caught in a sugar warehouse by two patrolmen, who fired several shots before he surrendered, George A. Potter, 34, of Austin st., Cambridge, told today of a grandiose plan for getting his hands on enough sugar for the duration.

No petty pilfering from restaurant sugar bowls for George. Police quoted him as confessing he entered the warehouse, where he was formerly employed, with the intention of taking away a truck-load of the stuff.

He had the truck, too, but that also was stolen, police said.

Arraigned in Cambridge District Court, Potter was ordered held in $500 for the grand jury by Judge Arthur P. Stone on charges of breaking and entering in the night, larceny of a truck and using the truck without authority.

According to Patrolman Gerald McCarthy, he and another officer noticed a broken window in the Savage Sugar Co. warehouse in Albany st., Cambridge, and the shadow of a man inside early this morning while making their rounds.

MOTHER SOUGHT—Suffering a severe cold, the month-old baby boy abandoned in an automobile in Fall River Saturday night was at Fall River General Hospital today as police tried in vain to identify him. Here the baby is held by Nurse Clothilde Andrade.

Press Flays Britain's Waiting War

LONDON, March 9 (AP)—The London press, whose editorials have already pointed to Malaya and Java as signposts on the road to defeat, further sharpened criticism today in an effort to whip the government into offensive action.

"Only an Allied counterattack on a gigantic scale can stem the Japanese now," the Daily Sketch said. "In the short space of three months they have established a supremacy which nothing but a superhuman effort will displace."

The Daily Mirror wrote: "Throughout the Allied Nations the cry goes up for younger men, for vigorous men, for audacious men. . . . Let us heartily welcome this crusade."

"We can afford nothing less than an all-out effort against our enemies NOW," declared the Daily Herald. "We call upon our reconstructed, rejuvenated government to sweep away the last obstacles, to declare total war." "More of defensive can only lead to more of disaster," Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express predicted. "If the spirit of Britain were aroused to the attack as it should be by now, we should be attacking, not only the enemy, but the fetters that hold us back inside this country."

"Time and the Japanese do not stand still," the Times pointed out, adding: "The power latent in this vast Allied combination dwarfs that at the disposal of Japan. But it requires to be organized, marshalled and brought under the direction of a single strategy. . . . Much remains to be done."

Brockton Man Ends Life by Hanging

BROCKTON, March 9.—On the eve of the second anniversary of his wife's death, Samuel Barrow, 56, was found dead today by strangulation at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Barlow, in Holbrook ave.

The son, with whom the father had been making his home, found him slumped partly on the floor with one end of a length of rope around his neck and the other around a bedpost. Medical Examiner P. H. Leavitt pronounced the death a suicide.

Cherry Blossom Festival In Capital Is Cancelled

WASHINGTON, March 9 (INS)—Washington's traditional cherry blossom festival, which annually ushers in the first blooms of the Japanese cherry trees along the Potomac river was cancelled today. Quincy Doctor in Divorce Suit Tells of Battles

Dr. Walter M. O'Brien of Quincy, prominent South Shore surgeon seeking a divorce, told Judge John V. Mahoney today in Dedham probate court that since leaving his wife last August he has been guarded constantly by a policeman in his office.

His office is in the house where his wife, Althea O'Brien, still lives, the surgeon said, and he has felt the officer to be necessary in protecting him from her abuse.

Dr. O'Brien seeks custody of three daughters. Mrs. O'Brien, former registered nurse, who married him Jan. 2, 1927, when he was a medical student, has filed a cross-action for separate support and also seeks custody of the daughters.

Aug. 25 the doctor left his home, he said, when his wife started a quarrel over his cutting off charge accounts.

He testified that she kicked and scratched him and then seized his necktie, holding on with such a grip that neither he nor two other men in the house could release him until he drew a pair of surgical scissors from his pocket and snipped the tie.

He told Judge Mahoney he did not think it cruel that he invented a story of having a communicable malady and told his wife she would surely catch it.

There were several occasions, the doctor said, when she intruded at card games at their home and slapped his face in the presence of other men.

SAYS LOVE IS DEAD
He said he felt he had to leave her because her abuse was beginning to affect his surgical skill.

Under cross-examination, the doctor denied striking her and declared she was always the aggressor. He admitted that he drank occasionally, but said he never had been unfaithful.

Dr. O'Brien declared that he has no love for his wife now and that there is no hope for a reconciliation, nor does he desire one.

The case is unfinished.

One Man Injured In South End Fire

Fire today swept through a three-story dwelling in Briggs pl., South End, causing injury to one man and doing damage estimated by officials at $2000.

Pastor's Prayer Granted, 'Dead' Son in Luzon Alive

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—"God is good," the Rev. Roy W. Merrifield said today. "God is merciful and God is reliable."

On Sunday, Feb. 1, closing the services in Plymouth Congregational Church, Mr. Merrifield read the roll of neighborhood boys who were fighting with Gen. MacArthur in Bataan.

"And also my son, 'Jacques,'" he told the congregation. "He was killed in action while guarding Clark field on Luzon on Dec. 30, according to a telegram I received this morning."

For more than a month the congregation has been in mourning, but another messenger brought another telegram to the Merrifield home late yesterday.

"Referring to my telegram of Jan. 31," it began prosaically, "Am deeply gratified to inform you that the commanding general of the United States forces in the Far East, MacArthur, reports as if this date that your son, Technical Sergt. Jacques W. Merrifield, previously reported killed in action on Dec. 30, has been found alive and well."

"Alive and well!" The good news spread quickly through the neighborhood. Had he received it a few hours earlier, the minister said, it would have given him great joy to read it in church.

U-BOATS FAILING HERE AS IN LAST WAR ⁵

Is our Navy meeting the Nazi U-boat menace? Should the nation's fighting ships be shifted from coast to coast at every sign of danger? Or should we let the naval strategists conduct the fight without interference by alarmists or propagandists?

Learn the answers to these and other vexing problems in this second illuminating and hard-hitting article by Win Brooks. The first appeared in yesterday's Sunday Advertiser Pictorial Review.

Every loyal American should read this series to learn the answers to wild-eyed rumor-mongers and fifth columnists who seek to bewilder us with lies and half-truths.

By WIN BROOKS

THE Navy's Atlantic task is no less formidable and no less important than that upon which it is engaged in the Pacific.

In both oceans the major weapon turned against it is the torpedo—torpedo plane on one hand, U-boat on the other (N. Y. Times yesterday reported Hitler speeding perfection of a fast torpedo plane) and in both oceans the major job at present is the swift and safe transportation of men, planes, tanks and guns into position for use against the enemy.

In both oceans, too, fleet offense under air protection is the Navy's ultimate objective: certainly in the case of Japan, almost certainly in the case of Germany.

In Europe the Navy's job of transport already is shaping the whole pattern of war.

Criticism leveled at the Navy as a result of the U-boat raids on the Atlantic coast and the shelling of Aruba and Porto Rico, is as unwarranted as criticism over failure of the Pacific battle fleet to engage the Jap without adequate air protection.

Subs Here Before

We have the battle of the Atlantic in our front yard since Jan. 1 and we'd likely have it here until the war ends. Let it stay here! It can seriously harm us only if we permit it to divert us from the course of victory.

For a complete realization of the significance and importance of the U-boat raids on our coast it is necessary to condense a little-known chapter of World War I.

Six German submarines came over on raiding expeditions during the last war after peace-time reconnaissance. They operated in our coastal waters for six months. They sank a total of 91 ships aggregating 197,761 tons, killing 433 persons. They operated 5400 miles from bases, cruised an average of 10,000 miles, remained away from Kiel as long as three months.

They mined Delaware Bay, cut transatlantic cables, raided the fishing fleets, shelled Orleans, torpedoed merchantmen promiscuously and accounted for one of our cruisers with a seven mine.

Not one of these raiders was sunk.

They had a two-fold, interlocking objective as they have today: (1) destruction, at the source, of the armies and supplies that doomed Germany; (2) diversion of American naval forces from the task abroad.

Failed in Purpose

They failed utterly in both. No supplies under convoy were destroyed; no troopship was lost. No vessels engaged in safeguarding transport were diverted for defense of home waters.

Germany expected to raise such a hue and cry along our coast to "keep the fleet at home" that the government would be forced to divert warships from convoy duty and so slow down the supply line. She failed, and six months after

Man With Broken Leg Treated Rightly For Shock Only!

KEENE, N. H., March 9.—Albert Caron of Gosun, N. H., was injured today and then again, he wasn't.

He was struck in West Swanzey by a car police said was driven by Frank S. Lonsdale of Northfield, Mass.

At Elliott Community Hospital here he was found to have a broken leg but the doctors treated him for shock only.

The leg was wooden and the "fracture" didn't hurt Caron a bit.

the first raider appeared off our coast the men and supplies our Navy safely transported to Europe brought Germany to her knees.

Some such "hue and cry" has arisen today among alarmists and shallow thinkers, and certainly among propagandists.

True enough, today's attacks over a more extended area indicate a campaign of major proportions, but the results, scaled to the measure of the attack, are hardly enough to be alarming and certainly not sufficient to warrant a deflection of our aim from the bull's-eye in Europe.

Hitler improved the U-boat and the U-boats weapon, perfected it as a more deadly weapon on the model of experience (1918, 1940-41) and reconnaissance (Do you remember President Roosevelt's announcements of the detected presence of unidentified submarines in our waters 18 months before we entered the war?)

Not So Efficient

Germany is estimated to have a fleet of upwards of 300 submarines, of which 200 or less may have the long range cruising radius necessary for operation on this side of the Atlantic. There is ample evidence Hitler has sent a third of this fleet into our waters and that this proportion of it, in relays, will continue operations over here.

While they have sunk upwards of two score ships along the Atlantic coast in a little more than two months, these have been mostly ships of the coastwise service, unconvoyed, carrying cargoes not destined for abroad and their total, in proportion to the scale of the attack, indicates the U-boats are operating far less efficiently than the lone-wolf raiders of 1918.

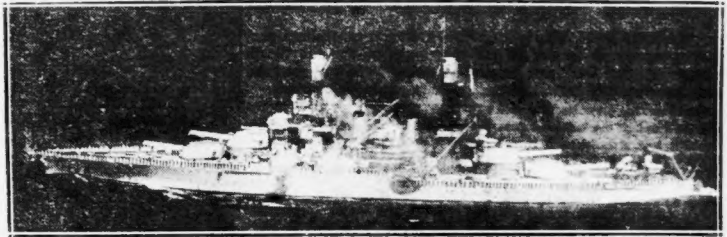

Hitler's submarine campaign here has been blessed by the devil this winter. The raiders have had bright nights, moderate seas, ideal weather for attack and ideal conditions for recharging their batteries and saving fuel. The usual number of intense storms failed to develop in January and February.

Yet their accomplishments have not been in keeping with the devil's blessing and we may rest assured that the Navy's constantly expanding blimp patrol, it's ever increasing off-shore patrol and its efficiently functioning in-shore patrol will combine further to diminish their effectiveness.

We Can 'Take It'

We should not expect any detailed announcements regarding progress of the war upon the U-boat (though some British reporter may blast loose with all the facts of American naval accomplishment some day). The one Navy report as to number of attacks, number of sinkings and number of submarines destroyed or damaged, was probably more for Hitler's consumption than for our own.

He has little means of tallying the accomplishments or defeats of his raiders and making preparations to retaliate, even in case they return to bases to report, or fail to return, or we give the information by public announcement. We can "take it" as regards bal-

Part of Navy That "Has Never Been Beaten and Never Will Be"

news. As regards good news we can go without it if its announcement will assist the enemy and this is more true of the U-boat campaign than any other phase of warfare. (British papers please copy.)

In all our attitude towards the conduct of the war by the Navy we should keep in mind that we are really fighting two wars, not a two-ocean war, and that if circumstances permitted us to concentrate our forces on either enemy (and they definitely do not) we could win in quick time.

Spring Action Due

So, as the tempo of our production increases it will become more and more apparent that defeat either of Jap or Nazi must mean the quick capitulation of the other in the face of the Navy released for use against him. If Hitler is brought to his knees early next year when our production will be at peak, the united forces immediately available for striking Japan will be overwhelming.

While the Navy has no target on the other side of the Atlantic so vulnerable to air-protected fleet attack as our Pacific aggressor, there are definite indications that fleet action of major proportions is scheduled for the European battlefield this year.

That Stalin has renewed and is increasing pressure on the United States and England for the opening of another front is just as certain as the preparations being made by the United States and England to that end.

The RAF's devastating raid on the Paris war industries, the arrival of more American troops in Northern Ireland under our own convoy, the presence of American troops in London and the reports of American aircraft, troops and bases in the Middle East—all these are straws blowing in the new spring wind.

Hitler Must Attack

Direct attack on the French coast, invasion of Norway for a junction with the Soviet army, invasion of Italy or the starting of a great offensive through Syria and Turkey all are possibilities that will require major fleet action and all are possibilities that may well be giving Hitler pause now. And while he pauses, the Navy is getting the men and supplies into many positions to be used against him.

Hitler must throw more pressure against Russia in a few weeks or suffer a collapse of faith at home. The recent inactivity of the Luftwaffe, described as ominous, may be only a reflection of his indecision regarding the most effective means of its disposition, whether for attack or defense in the face of the continued strengthening of his enemies everywhere. Yet, like the Jap, he seems committed to continued attack for his own defense.

The New York Times, in addition to focusing attention upon his development of a new torpedo plane, reports that the Italian fleet is being made ready for action and that two Spanish warships have appeared in Greek ports, for reason not apparent.

A Nazi blow across the Middle East, seeking a juncture with the Jap in India is the pattern concluded. But Hitler can't attempt that without first stalemating the Red army and strengthening his defense of the French occupied coast. A full scale invasion thrust through France for the heart of Germany might abruptly end the war.

Navy Never Licked

One thing only is certain: the supplies and the men the Navy is transporting abroad will go into an attack on a scale to which Hitler's armies have not yet been subjected and his only hope of winning the war lies in diverting the Navy now from the task that dooms him.

The U-boat is a minor problem unless we permit ourselves to become panicked by it. No shore attack by U-boat and no invasion by U-boat will ever amount to anything and the raiding of the U-boat is being kept well in hand.

If you have permitted the one mistake of Pearl Harbor to shake your faith in the Navy remember this:

The Navy still cherishes and guards its own tradition. It has never been beaten and never will be. It is still the greatest fighting unit on all the globe. Its ships, guns, crews, strategists, planes and bomb sights are still the world's best. Dewey and Perry and Jones and Schley still walk the bridges of its flagships. It still has the clearest, eager, stalwart youngsters who can smash a half dozen of the enemy's bombers in a day's fighting or sight sub and sink same.

SINGLE AGENCY TO BUY ARMY SUPPLIES URGED

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—A single, centralized purchasing agency to furnish all military supplies—for the "death grapple of total war" was demanded today by a congressional committee sharply critical of the nation's production efforts.

"Failure to organize the domestic front of the battle of production has already been translated into serious defeats for our own armed forces," said a report by the House committee on defense migration, headed by Rep. Toland (D.), of California.

Maintaining that the United States had "not even begun" to match Germany, Italy and Japan in production, the committee said this was "traceable to our inability to comprehend the nature and scope of modern warfare and the length to which our enemies have gone to prepare themselves."

The committee, which spent months studying problems of labor supply and material procurement, recommended:

1.—Creation of a special technical division under the civilian procurement agency to maintain an up-to-date, complete inventory on industrial facilities, the supply of critical materials, and the supply of labor.

2.—Labor-management co-operation through joint national, regional and plant committees headed by a paid government official, on production and procurement problems.

"Our enemies," said the report, "are operating along the inner line, and even our defensive operations to hold them in check require deploying our forces around the world. For such warfare we shall need not merely to equal the output of our enemies, but to surpass that output by three or four times."

The committee noted a tendency to permit the major corporations to determine the extent to which they could subcontract and to choose subcontractors with which they were affiliated financially. It argued that policy worked against bringing small business into the defense production program and retarded production.

3d Brazilian Ship Sunk Off U. S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 9 (AP)—The 7878-ton Brazilian freighter Arabutan was sunk Saturday night 70 miles off Newport News, Va., but all aboard were saved. Permission to publish the news was given today.

The Arabutan, the third Brazilian vessel sunk off the east coast of the United States, was operated by the Lloyd Nacional line.

Besides her 51 crew members it was reported here that she also had aboard some members of a Brazilian tanker which is being repaired in the United States.

The Arabutan, formerly the Italian ship Capra, was built at San Francisco in 1917.

She ran aground at Rio de Janeiro in 1926, and was taken over and remodeled by the Brazilian company.

SUES THIRD — Ann Rork Getty Wilson Ross, former film actress, has filed suit in Los Angeles to annul her marriage to her third husband, Jay Ross, one-time truck driver and now an RAF pilot. She charges Ross was not finally divorced from his first wife at the time of their wedding.

Lights in Blackouts Mean Penalties, Public Warned

Reports that lights were left burning in two locked homes in central Massachusetts towns where blackout tests were held, brought warnings today from defense officials that stiff penalties hang over any persons refusing to cooperate in the preparedness programs.

Most of the 13 inland communities, conducting the tests reported success in their blackouts, but lights left burning by careless householders in Oxford and North Brookfield marred the tests in those towns.

Towns reporting successful blackouts included Concord, Bellingham, Hopkinton, Mendon, Hopedale, Dudley, Upton, Milford, Webster and Medway.

The "largest area" blackout thus far in the tests will be Cape Cod on next Sunday night. The entire Cape—which is all of Barnstable County and designated as Region 7—will be blacked out, from the canal to Provincetown, between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

This is an area of 661 square miles, covering 22 towns with a total population of 45,000, and the test will include Camp Edwards as well as Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket island.

More Massachusetts cities are preparing for blackouts this week. One of the most extensive tests will be conducted tomorrow night along the South Shore, including the city of Quincy and town of Braintree.

Much of the state will be darkened, also, on Thursday night.

Instead of a blackout, Amesbury conducted a drill for air wardens and auxiliary units of the police and fire departments.

Smart Styles Called Vital To Morale

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—The war production board told Miss and Mrs. America in advance today that regulations now being drafted would "more or less freeze the existing silhouette" in women's clothes.

The regulations will cover both the design and materials of the clothing in milady's wardrobe.

"The object will be to prevent radical changes in style which would make women's clothes now worn, or already cut, out of style," K. R. Guthrie, WPB textiles chief, declared.

Although admitting that present stocks of women's clothes appeared adequate for this year, Guthrie asserted the WPB intended to "provide for the rainy day while the sun is still shining."

Restrictions now being drafted deal chiefly with establishment of maximum lengths and sweeps of women's coats and dresses, he explained, adding "no drastic change in length is contemplated."

Conservation of materials will be reflected in orders eliminating jackets over dresses, topcoats over suits and similar articles consisting of more than two garments at a unit price.

Guthrie emphasized that WPB had no desire to eliminate "style," asserting that the government was well aware of the importance of fashion "to the general field of public morale."

He said, however, the board's problem was to assure maximum production of military supplies and clothing, providing at the same time for essential civilian supply.

Because of war conditions and demands of the armed services, he continued, "we must necessarily anticipate the development of shortages in the various materials used in the garment trade."

SALEM, March 9—As a precaution against possible damage by a revengeful fanatic, the famous Japanese collection in Weld Hall of Peabody Museum has been closed to the public for the duration of the war.

The hall, constructed in 1906 as a gift of Dr. Charles Goddard Weld of Boston, houses thousands of articles representing Japanese social life, recognized as the largest single collection of Nipponese ethnology in the world.

Director Lawrence W. Jenkins said that the museum is still accepting gifts of Japanese articles, however, and will display them when the section is opened after the war. Meanwhile, the entire exhibit will continue to be blacked out.

Visitors are reported showing a new interest in the China and India exhibits in the Weld Hall balcony, which will soon be reopened

Hara-Kiri General No. 1 Anti-Axis Jap

By JAMES R. YONUG

AUTHOR AND FAR EAST EXPERT

(Written Exclusively for International News Service)

If Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters confirm the hara-kiri of Lieut.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, Japan has lost her No. 1 anti-Axis militarist.

Homma was leader of the one-time pro-British bloc of the Jap-the enemy or had been pushed into a tough job and could not deliver the islands on schedule. The Germans, last July, had assured the Japs that Moscow and Manila could be taken by Christmas.

Homma liked golf. He spoke good English. He wore selected Scotch tweeds. He preferred Scotch to sake (rice wine). He enjoyed the companionship and conversation of British and Americans. He smoked British cigarettes.

His interviews were trustworthy. He knew that Japan would never win a battle against a major power over any long-term period. He counseled security through home defense. He was anti-Russian, but not anti-Chinese.

I think I knew Lieut.-Gen. Homma quite well.

A Japanese judge gave me one month for having quoted Gen. Homma that Japan could not defeat China.

Perhaps Gen. Homma in his Manila hotel suite decided his army could not defeat MacArthur's forces and the man from Tokio took the honorable Japanese way out of a predicament.

Japan's military book of rules called for capture of the Philippines in four weeks. Homma's men have met disaster in their 14-week-old campaign against MacArthur's numerically inferior troops.

Congress Urged to Drop Personal Tax Exemptions

By GRIFFING BANCROFT

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 9 (INS)—Congress was urged today to wipe out all personal income tax exemptions to bring all incomes, no matter how small, within the scope of direct taxation to help finance the war.

The recommendation was made by M. L. Seidman, chairman of the taxation committee of the New York Board of Trade, as he appeared before the House ways and means committee to testify on the Treasury's $7,610,000,000 tax program.

His far-reaching suggestion would mean that every man, woman and child in the country who received any income whatsoever, no matter how small, would pay a direct tax.

Questioned by committee members, Seidman suggested that the tax on the "little fellows" now exempt should be "about 10 per cent."

"If we reach the $50,000,000,000 in national income now exempt from income tax, and tax that at say 10 per cent, that would raise $5,000,000,000," Seidman said.

Single persons earning less than $15 a week and married couples with incomes less than $30 a week pay no income taxes under the present law.

The Treasury, which recommended doubling present lower and middle bracket income levies in its new program, opposed any change in the present law which exempts single persons with less than $750 a year income and married couples with less than $1500 income.

U. S.-BRITISH CARIBBEAN BOARD NAMED

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—Creation of an Anglo-American Caribbean Commission, which will seek to encourage and strengthen social and economic co-operation between American and British outposts in the Caribbean, was announced today in a joint communique of the British and American governments.

The commission, which will make studies pertaining to economic and social problems, will have authority only to formulate recommendations for submission to the respective governments.

There will be three American and three British members, with Charles W. Taussig, president of the American Molasses Co. of New York, as one co-chairman, and Sir Frank Stockdale as the other.

President Roosevelt also placed on the commission Rexford G. Tugwell, governor of Puerto Rico, and Coert Du Bois, chief of the State Department's Caribbean office.

President Roosevelt also created a Caribbean advisory committee which is to make studies "intended to improve the standards of living" in the Caribbean islands. This committee also will have only the power to make recommendations.

City Officials in Bribe Cases Held in $2500 Bail

Officials named in bribery indictments growing out of probes into the conduct of municipal affairs at Cambridge and Lowell were arraigned today in Middlesex Superior Court, all of them pleading not guilty and being held in $2500 each for trial.

In connection with the Cambridge probe, which already has sent former Mayor John W. Lyons to State Prison, two men were arraigned and pleaded, with a third, Anthony F. Spinelli, Milton contractor, to be arraigned later.

John W. Beal, 54, of Hanover, former State Public Works commissioner, and his brother, Horatio W. Beal, 52, of Park drive, Fenway, both pleaded innocent to an indictment charging them with conspiracy to request and accept bribes.

John W. Beal alone pleaded innocent to charges of bribery and perjury contained in four other indictments.

Spinelli, to be arraigned later, was the contractor on the Cambridge Tuberculosis Hospital, with which the indictments are all understood to be concerned.

In connection with the Lowell probe, Mayor George T. Ashe, 37, was arraigned with Walter Connor, 38, the Lowell city purchasing agent, and his brother, John Connor, 36.

One indictment charged Mayor Ashe, the two Connors and John F. McKoon, former salesman for a machinery company, with conspiracy to "procure materials, supplies and other articles and to receive a commission, discount or bonus from persons making such contracts to furnish such materials" to the city of Lowell.

Another indictment charged Mayor Ashe with requesting and accepting bribes.

In two more indictments, the Connor brothers were charged with conspiring to have Walter Connor accept gratuities, and conspiring to sell property to the city of Lowell for a consideration.

In the Lowell group all except McKoon, who will be arraigned later, pleaded innocent.

No dates were set for the trials.

Shovel Kills Cambridge Boy, Injures Other

In Cambridge there was no school today because of the storm, but the recess cost one Cambridge boy his life, and resulted in critical injuries to his brother.

Robert Bonsignore, 10, of Thorndike st., East Cambridge, trapped beneath the scoop of a steam shovel, was fatally injured in Rogers st., near his home.

James Vincent Bonsignore, 11, was struck by the shovel but was thrown aside. Nevertheless he sustained a possible fracture of the skull and deep lacerations on the head.

The steam shovel was idle today in dead-end Rogers st. because of weather conditions, and the scoop, disconnected from the machine, stood upended near the machine.

Police said they were told by witnesses the brothers were climbing over the two-ton shove in the pouring rain when the scoop suddenly settled and turned over, pinning Robert and striking James.

Someone rang in a fire alarm bringing a rescue company with other apparatus. Firemen lifted the heavy shovel from off the younger boy.

He and his brother were rushed in a police ambulance to Cambridge City Hospital, but Robert died as he was being placed on the operating table.

$1000 AWARD FOR STEP-UP IN PRODUCTION

By WALTER KIERNAN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—The government's challenge that there are few plants in the country that cannot get more out of their existing machines? General Motors Corp. today offered to pay up to $1000 to any employee who has a plan to step up even his own production.

The plan, announced in New York and Detroit, came even as the "Nelson plan" for stepping up production through the formation of labor-management committees was being hotly discussed.

ENDORSED BY CIO

The "Nelson plan" proposed by Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production Board, has been endorsed by Philip Murray, chief of the CIO, except that Nelson is out for an 168-hour work week and Murray has not touched on that point.

Officially, neither General Motors nor any other big war industry has commented on the plan, which would give labor equal control of production under a committee system new to the free enterprise system.

The bonus plan announced today, however, appears to be General Motors' counterproposal and challenge offering cash reward instead of responsibility to the General Motors worker.

Under the General Motors proposal, management would remain in the hands of management.

REPORTER SEES U. S. NAVY FLIERS DOWN 18 BOMBERS

statement of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, that we would carry the fight to the enemy across this trackless battlefield of 70,000,000 square miles.

The engagement occurred west of the Gilbert Islands. Our compact force of warships was in geometrical formation around an aircraft carrier and was out here protecting the Allied lifeline.

The carrier, of course, was the prize target, but the Japanese didn't touch her.

The bombs all fell wide of their mark, and their vaunted torpedo bombers—so successful at Pearl Harbor—didn't even appear. With ships on the move, it's a different story.

From the highest point on the destroyer beside the aircraft carrier, I watched the battle from beginning to end.

The carrier and her brood had been patrolling the broad reaches of the blue Pacific, but this was her baptism of fire. She came through majestically launching more planes in the midst of the attack and blazing away with her own guns in chorus with the screen of cruisers and destroyers around her.

There was one breath-taking moment—when a Japanese pilot tried to crash his flaming bomber on the stern of the carrier's big flat deck. As the screaming raider slid in rickety, with flames started by an attack by our own fighters, the carrier held her fire until the right instant. Then her guns lashed out with a sheet of flame and steel.

The bomber flattered like a duck's back, turned on its side and shuddered into the sea.

It would be hard to imagine a more fascinating sight.

By this time bombs were falling all around us, sending up geysers of warm spray in the Tropical sunlight.

The metallic blast of the anti-aircraft guns was almost deafening, but every man on our swaying director platform sang out with loud and long cheers. The carrier steamed on, ready for the next one. More bombs came down and I made a quiet prayer:

"God be with us all."

Minutes before, several hundred yards away, we had seen the first two victims of our air fighters fall. They were knocked out of their formation, like ducks in a shooting gallery, as the fighters swept down on them.

They streaked the sky with red and left great columns of flame rising from the sea. It was surprising how long the fires lasted. Those babies must have carried a lot of gasoline.

That was this afternoon. The prelude to the battle sounded this they came, still in formation. One dropped out, wheeling and plunging desperately. Others passed right over us—more than 50 bombs fell everywhere.

A small piece of metal zinged against the bridge and the captain yelled:

"Give the — hell—give 'em hell!"

His voice sounded strange. It occurred to me that I had no cotton in my ears and now, hours later, voices still sound like a phonograph that needs a new needle.

That second formation gave us a breathtaking moment of our own. When we picked up the pilot we lagged behind the other ships. Therefore we had time to catch up, a bomb fell fairly close to our stern—and presently our radar jammed.

We went around in crazy, helpless circles, while the rest of the fleet steamed ahead. This was no time for town, and besides, night was falling. With deepest gloom, I pictured us as a sailor had for the first time that meaning might bring with greater numbers and hotter fury.

Nobody else seemed alarmed! I went to work on a piece of chewing gum, and now time flies as a happy ending. The radar trouble cleared in half an hour, and we caught up with our friends.

Links LaGuardia In Paving 'Deal'

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Paul J. Kern, ousted chairman of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, asserted today that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and Bronx Borough President James J. H. had made a "rough deal" to cover up an investigation of the paving of a contract on a country estate owned by Edward J. Hagan, Democratic political consultant.

Kern, who was fired last month after 27 years' employment, said the charges against Hagan and his wife, a former Miss New York, were "frivolous" and that the mayor ordered the case to be dropped. He said he had no witnesses and no witnesses were called by Hagan's attorneys after the Civil Service Commission had broken the case Jan. 1941.

RAF BOMBS ESSEN, KRUPP PLANT CENTER

OFFICIAL NEWS

LONDON, March 9 (AP).—The Royal Air Force (RAF) has announced that it has bombed the German city of Essen, the home of the Krupp munitions works, and that it has also bombed the Matford plant near Paris.

The aircraft went out late and reports are not yet in but it is believed the results are good," an authoritative statement said.

Essen, the home of the Krupp munitions works, was said to have been the main objective.

Flames spouting so high that low flying British fighters could look up at them were left by the RAF at the Matford plant.

The motor truck factory, eight miles west of the German-occupied French capital, reputed to produce 20 trucks a day for Germany, was hit directly by British bombs and others burst in an adjacent truck yard, the air ministry announced.

The raid, carried out in bright daylight virtually unopposed by the German air force, was the capping blow of a busy week-end for the RAF, illustrating the advance of the "V-for-victory campaign," to:

"Keep away from any work that is helping the Germans. The RAF is coming again more and more often."

Canadian airmen began the action Saturday night with a smash which scattered great fires in the dock area of St. Nazaire, the German-held French submarine base.

While a compact bombing force was making the main raid yesterday, other RAF units bombed a power station at Comines, near Lille; railroad yards at Abbeville, and destroyed two German lighters.

British planes still were on the offensive "over enemy territories" last night.

Injured U.S. Hero Waits Air Action

WITH UNITED NATIONS FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, March 9 (INS)—Lieut. Boyd D. (Buzz) Wagner, of Philadelphia and the Philippines, was almost ready for another crack at the Japanese today.

The daring American pilot had been out of action due to an eye injury sustained when an explosive bullet hit the cockpit of his plane.

Lieut. Wagner, who was mentioned in the war communique of Dec. 12, for knocking down two Japanese planes in the vicinity of Appari, on Luzon, and destroying several more on the ground, did not talk about his exploits or his plans, but it was easy to see he wanted to get about his business of fighting Japanese planes.

"He's a flier's flier," one of his friends said. "He's an idol of all the officers and men who know him."

You can speed up
URGENTLY NEEDED
telephone service
IN WAYS LIKE THESE

1 Please replace receiver properly . . . NOT like this. Unless bar is down, the line is "out of order." You cannot be called.

2 When an extension telephone is used and the call completed on another telephone, please be sure to put back the first receiver.

A RECEIVER out of place signals "line out of order" so a series of steps must be taken to get the line back in operation.

First, an effort is made to attract the subscriber's attention. A testman makes a special check. If these steps bring no result, a man is sent to the subscriber's home to get the line back in service.

Meanwhile, other telephone users are trying to call the "out of order" number. On party lines, the other subscribers can neither make nor receive calls.

You can see how much telephone apparatus, some of it now very difficult to obtain, is needlessly tied up when telephone receivers are left off the hook an average of 1365 times a day in this company's territory. And 368 of these times repairmen must be sent out to restore lines to service because the receivers were not replaced within a reasonable period. This unintentional tie-up of telephone service all comes to no less than 451 hours . . . hours when equipment is not speeding messages . . . messages that may be important to our army and navy, to air fields, bases, shipyards, arsenals and industries of New England.

Will you help us save vital telephone service?

Please replace telephone receivers properly.

ation about a "huge American troop convoy" while still "at sea," giving general routes and itemizing personnel, material and battle plan.

When this writer was in London last spring after riding a Canadian troop convoy to England from an undisclosed Canadian port, his copy was prepared on shipboard quickly, that was true, but it was not for instant censorship and quick delivery.

HOW BRITAIN DOES IT

After a week of delay it was returned in mutilated form by the British Admiralty. All references to weather though many times it was deleted. Mention of escort, troop designation and ship types were blue pencilled. The military matters—such, for example, as "kicking ash cans" off the decks of destroyers were rubbed off the pages until, finally, when the manuscript was returned it was a mere skeleton of its original form with little as a descriptive piece.

That was all right, too. The inevitable ways of British censorship are their own affair. British lives and British property were at stake.

Only too poignantly does the American press remember that Walter Furr of the London Daily Mail was the same journalist who "broke" the story of President Roosevelt's first meeting with Premier Winston Churchill when every U. S. press writer was kept in complete ignorance that a conference was to be held. That was the time when a full complement of English journalists were allowed to accompany the Premier. But not one American newspaperman was permitted to sail with the President. The people of this country got their "coverage" via London.

Nor is that all. Last week from London again came a graphic story of American workmen preparing a huge land and naval base in what was formerly Indian Officer on the shores of the Red Sea. English papers carried explicit detail on the mass of materials and number of technicians who were forming a mammoth military outpost. The story was relayed to the United States from Great Britain.

International News Photograph Service

FIRST U. S. CASUALTY

WASHINGTON'S SECRETS

But just as American editors were preparing the cable copy for type there came a terse command from Washington forbidding any mention of the matter. The story was obediently spiked, though later the President lamented the premature London release as a threat to the project.

Again! For months Washington news gatherers have been aware that a great military highway is being constructed along the extreme western margin of Canada and connecting the U. S. Northwest with our important Alaska bases. But on inquiry nothing was forthcoming from the Army, Navy or State Department, and even Secretary Ickes said, "the highway is a military secret. As such nothing may be told or published."

The matter was strictly hush-hush and treated thus by the U. S. press until suddenly the story broke in all its descriptive glory from Canada.

There is no lanceer intended in this. Merely that the time has come for a co-ordinated policy between ourselves and our neighboring power, Canada, as to what can and cannot be printed. The American people and press do not want information which may lend comfort to the enemy. No, do they want relayed "hoaxes" or prior news rights on American war news by Allied agencies. The press of this country is willing to play ball to the last, honest detail. Let London's press play the same kind of cricket.

Retreat in Libya

CAIRO, Egypt, March 9 (AP)—British police and customs forces forced several enemy units supported by artillery to withdraw along the Libyan front, a Middle East headquarters spokesman reported today.

No German troops had been heard from since the British landing force landed in the desert, fortified positions were being shelled by British tanks, and the British were reported to have taken a number of prisoners.

dozing and near the navy base of Soerabaja at 3 p. m. (approximately Tokyo time, or 2 a. m. E. W. T.). Bandoeng was headquarters of the Dutch army and also the arsenal of the rich island populated by 48,000,000.

Highly-placed Netherlands authorities declared the Dutch would "fight on to death."

Van Mook said a fair number of naval personnel had escaped from Java.

An authoritative Netherlands spokesman said although it was known that United States planes had fought in the battle for Java, he was "unable to state" whether U. S. ground forces participated.

"WHERE THERE'S LIFE"

Asked whether another "Bataan peninsula stand" would be attempted, the spokesman said that since the loss of the Tabanan, Phatu position, near Bandoeng, "no one could say where" such resistance could be made.

He declared that although the Netherlands Indies had prepared for two years to meet the expected Japanese onslaught, adequate reinforcements from abroad remained essential to successful resistance.

Arcta quoted an authoritative Netherlands source as saying:

"We Dutchmen are never hopeless. As long as there's life, there's hope. We will defend the Indies until the death."

Col. Peter de Blich of the Netherlands East Indies army said he did not know whether United States troops had been in action in Java, indicating the only Americans fighting there had been air force pilots.

"The situation is serious but not hopeless," he replied to a question about whether Java now was cut off from its allies.

He said three Dutch generals—Bakkers of the general staff, Maurer, chief of artillery, and Von Oyen, chief of the air force—still were in Java.

TOO FEW REINFORCEMENTS

Col. de Blich gave little hope for prolonged Dutch resistance. He said the positions around Tangkuban Prah, abandoned Friday, were not very strong. He indicated that Japanese superiority in the air and on land made the total subjection of the island a matter of days.

"We expected reinforcements in the air," he said; "they came, but they were not enough."

Lieut.-Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook and 14 members of the island's governing council arrived in Adelaide, Australia, after an air plane flight from Java. Gov.-Gen. Tjarda van Starkenborgh Stachouwer remained on the island.

Van Mook said his plane took off from "the last strip of runway available." His chief of air staff was among those accompanying him.

"We are here to collect all the forces we can get together to continue the struggle," he declared.

"A fair number of naval personnel have escaped. They want someone to rally them. I am sure we can carry on the fight."

"There are about eight Japanese divisions (from 120,000 to 160,000 men) in Java—many more than we had."

He added that the Australians "must try to get what we did not have—materials and fresh support."

"The best plan seems to be to try and cripple the enemy's sea forces and transport if it comes a long way from its bases," Van Mook said, "there should be an end to the retreating."

The whole party left their ways and returned to their homes.

SOME BITTERNESS

"There is no use hiding the fact that there is bitterness in some places in Java but our people understand the difficulties of getting things moving," Van Mook added. "The Allies, however, must understand there was an expectation of more help than arrived."

"American ships and Australian troops did their best and there is no doubt about their quality, but it was a case of too little and too late. I am not a soldier, but I think Japan's allies would rather have her move northward and westward than southward."

"A large-scale attack on Australia, however, would be very difficult from Japan's point of view as she would be further from her base. It is more likely that she will try to be a nuisance to the cities and supply centers."

Boys of Junior Army Get New Ball Game

Below is the lesson in the games on Physical Fitness, especially prepared for Junior Victory Army members by Joe McKenney, associate director, physical education, Boston public schools, to fit them for defense efforts.

By JOE MCKENNEY
Lesson Twelve

Here is a new game for boy members of the Junior Army which will provide them with many happy hours of play:

SPEEDBALL:

Speedball is a new game inside of the goal and intersecting volleyball out of soccer, but adding the goal line and 20 yard-line are the use of the hands under certain conditions, and bringing about many scoring possibilities.

The one great distinction between soccer and speedball is that, in the latter, the rules permit the catching of "fly balls." If the ball is kicked into the air and is caught before it reaches the ground it is called a "fly ball" and may be passed or kicked. A "ground ball" (one that is bounced) must be played as in soccer without the use of the hands. A player who kicks the ball into the air is expected to catch it himself before it hits the ground.

FIELD LIKE FOOTBALL.

The player having possession of the ball can not run with it. He must advance it by means of a kicking dribble or by an overhead dribble, the latter being permitted only once. That is, a player may toss the ball forward and recover it before it hits the ground. He may then pass or kick it or drop it to the ground and dribble it down the field with the foot.

Speedball is officially played on a field the same size as the football field, although a smaller space is frequently used. There are two end zones, as in football, reaching 10 yards behind the goal lines. There is a penalty area in front of each goal, consisting of the space between the goal line and a parallel line, 20 yards distant, which is drawn across the field of play.

Two foul lines (5 yards) in each

There are three means of scoring from the field, counting three, two and one, respectively. The first is when the ball is kicked under the crossbar, the second is when a player drops the ball in the end zone and the third is when the ball is dropped-kicked over the crossbar and between the uprights.

EASY TO LEARN

There is also a personal foul rule, similar to basketball, and a penalty kick from the foul line, made after such an infraction of the rules, counts one. Two kicks are awarded in case the foul has been made by a team in its own penalty area. Technical fouls, such as running with the ball or illegally touching it with the hands, are penalized by giving the ball to the opposite side at the point where the offense occurs and allowing a free kick, the offending team being 10 yards away. If such a foul is committed by the defense within its own penalty area, a penalty kick is awarded.

When a ball is fought over and held by two players, as in basketball, it is held on the ground and the opposing players stand, each with his left foot against the ball until the referee from the referee allows them to attempt to kick it.

The advantages of speedball are that it combines passing, kicking and dribbling with the foot. It is easy to learn. Scoring opportunities are frequent. The goal tenders are permitted to interchange with players. The penalties for technical fouls are sufficiently severe to discourage rough play.

The game is played in four quarters of 10 minutes each. A referee and two assistants are chosen in charge of the game.

AUSTRALIAN PLANES CARRY FIGHT TO JAPS

Japanese naval forces and transports appeared off Salomona early Sunday morning and troops landed, the command reported.

Shortly afterwards a similar force landed at Lae. Cruisers and destroyers shelled the town ship but details have not yet been received.

After the Salomona landing force at Lae, it clearly is considerable. It was preceded by a bombing attack on Bulolo at noon Saturday.

Seven after the Salomona landing, our aircraft made a low flying attack on enemy shipping and early reports show direct hits were scored. All our aircraft returned safely.

16 2-Front Offensive Seen Taking Shape

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

In addition to growing Allied signs of offensive action in the Pacific, there are also signs of Allied activity in Western Europe. The purpose of such a strategy of limited attack is obvious. Nations of potential limited resources are fighting powers superior in immediate fighting strength, but of decidedly inferior potential resources.

Bitter experience tells that defeat will follow a mere passive defense which allows the enemy full freedom of action and permits him to concentrate his fighting resources for the accomplishment of one objective, without taking advantage of the fact that he thereby exposes vital interest in other parts.

Maj. G. F. Eliot

Only by continual small scale attacks never in areas where he can bring to bear his full weight, but always forcing him to use up his precious resources of men, weapons, fuel and supplies, as well as time, can he be kept off balance to prevent him from getting set for any big scale push, unable to take full advantage of his superior fighting strength.

Only thus can he be delayed, prevented from going too far, until our potential resources are translated into that superior fighting strength which some day we will be able to bear against him in overwhelming power.

SITUATION CHANGED

The German high command today is in a very different position than the German high command which ordered the invasion of Poland in 1939. Then they were perfectly sure either France nor Britain would attack from the rear. They had plenty of gas, oil, ammunition, and overwhelming air force power of all sorts to rely on.

Now on the west they must watch hundreds of miles of coast in any mile of which British Commandos might swoop out of the sea mist. They must guard hundreds of air fields, upon any one of which American or British paratroopers or air borne troops may drop from any dawn sky. They cannot be sure that a larger scale of Norway, or Brittany or Holland may not be behind any Allied raid.

The new long range bomber squadrons hammering mercilessly at industrial and military objectives are tying down large numbers of German fighters and anti-aircraft guns.

There is no peace, no safety anywhere. It is very far from being All Quiet on the Western Front. Sometimes as we contemplate the rather gloomy picture the present state of war presents from our point of view, we forget the troubles of our enemy. He has plenty of them. And it is our duty to accentuate and increase them by every means in our power.

An active policy within the limits imposed by our immediate fighting strength is the best way to make the enemy unhappy. If he knows that we are committed to a mere state of defense of the British Isles, for instance, while we get ready for some hoped for great offensive in the west next year, the enemy will be quite pleased, contentable to carry on with the task of attacking Russia.

ENEMY BESET

On the other hand, if he is continually harassed and beset, his men along the whole coastal frontier cannot lay down their tired bodies on their beds on any given night with any assurance they will not be blasted out of those beds by a 600-pound or an 8-inch shell.

If no post or airfield cannot lax vigilance for even a moment, then the Nazi high command cannot go ahead in comfort to plan its spring offensive against Russia. Attacking Russia is a major job as the Nazis have already discovered.

In alloting troops and supplies for such a task, the German high command cannot afford to reduce its western establishments with the staggering total that they reached last year. In fact, the Nazi high command is not resting on any bed of roses and the more and the harder the blows that accentuate their troubles, the easier going the Russians will have in dealing with the German major effort.

In turn of course, the easier the Russians find their European campaign the likelier they will be to give the rest of us a hand in the Far East if we need it later on. This is indeed a world war.

New Citizens Shown Justice

While 200 applicants waited in Federal Court today to take the oath which would make them citizens a German national was arraigned before Judge George T. Sweeney on charges of failing to register as an alien.

William Godfried Strosser, 39, of Main st., Watertown, who has been in this country since 1921, was ordered held on bonds of $5000 for a trial. He pleaded no guilty.

In commenting on the case after trial, he had administered the oath to the naturalized citizens, Judge Sweeney said:

"This is an example of the privileges an alien has in this country, of the benefits of due process of law.

"Contrast this with Germany. Can you imagine an American citizen living in Germany, arraigned in court and being permitted to go out on bail or allowed a trial. He would be thrown into a concentration camp forthwith."

Tea From Historic Boston Party Nov in Chicago

By International Service
CHICAGO, March 11.—The story of how this priceless relic of Revolutionary days found its way to the Society was recalled at the recent anniversary of the death of David Kenison, who was the last survivor of the Tea Party and who died in this city 99 years ago.

Kenison, whose grave is now marked by a granite boulder bearing a bronze tablet, was 115 years of age at his death, according to records which give his birth place as Kingston, N. H. He was one of the daring New Englanders who donned Indian garb on the night of Dec. 18, 1773, and damped overboard a cargo of tea on a Boston ship in defiance of English taxation. Kenison, however, paused long enough while tomahawking a chest of tea to grab a handful of leaves and stuff them into his belt pouch. The next day he sealed them in a glass bottle and kept them as a memento of the occasion.

PUBLIC FUNERAL

Taking an active part in the fighting, Kenison joined the Minute Men and fought at Bunker Hill, White Plains, West Point and Long Island, and saw the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. According to historical records, he enlisted again when past 71 and was stationed at Ft. Dearborn. He was wounded in the War of 1812 at the Battle of Sacket's Harbor. Kenison came to Chicago when he was 30 and 3 years before his death granted a request of the historical society to transfer to them his precious tea leaves. Burialment.

Beauty

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL—And your skin would be eternally free of grimy film . . . says Arline Gould, if you could spend your days in the outdoors . . . yes, with an occasional wade in your pet mountain brook, which was Gail Patrick's pleasant pursuit when the camera caught up with her. But if city dirt threatens complexion troubles, you'll counteract it with an unusual cream Miss Gould describes.

THIS CLEANSING CREAM REMOVES CITY GRIME

By ARLINE GOULD

EVERY GIRL WHO lives or works in town is besieged by dreams of living in the sunny peace of the deep country or unbroken seashore, at least, for heaven's sake, week-ends when she can get a few breaths of pure air . . . but the fulfillment of these dreams is limited at best . . . unless you live in a three-story brownstone that closes its front door in March and occupants complete with outboard and a big red van move into the hunting country.

Otherwise, you go on suffering from "traffic film" on your complexion, and wondering why your pores are never really guiltless of grime . . . or why your skin seems to have over an ineradicable dull sheath. The sheath is there all right, . . . microscope shuts prove it. It completely hides warm, natural skin tones.

You're not as flounders as it might seem, on the surface . . . for a group of cosmetics that originated in a doctor's laboratory has a wonderful cream in a tube but 75¢, not dear) which is the only one in the world compounded with special solvent properties to remove a mixture of dust and oil from the exhausts of motor cars. This is an excellent film, the "traffic film" which you can't escape. But you can remove it, with this cream.

It's wonderfully penetrating because it is entirely free of drying alcohols . . . which means that it softens as it works away the dullness to which you'd almost but not quite had many moments of rebellion before accustomed.

This is an extremely light weight cream, and unusual for a softening cream, it liquefies instantly.

You may have the habit, and a good one, of leaving tissue creams on your face for some time as you go about dressing. Don't do it with cleansing creams. Since a really fine one does not have absorptive oils of lubricating value, a thin coating removed immediately does the job best.

To learn about this remarkable cleansing cream with special solvent properties for gummy city grime, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, except the week-end, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOOD

—By Martha Lee

MARCH MEANS INCOME TAX time and Father's mood is apt to be far from a happy one. He'll probably feel he's having his own private depression, and you can't woo him back to jollity with a filet mignon. Household bills will be carefully scanned and scrutinized—so be forewarned and forearmed. Its low cost meals for March; and as this is also the Lenten season fish and meatless dishes find a natural place on the weekly menu. Serve vegetable plates and cheese dishes often, and also chowders and hearty soups.

One of the most satisfying low cost dinners is a one-piece, top of stove Dutch oven dinner. Not only can you use the cheaper cuts of meats, but you save on time, fuel and service. If you have one of those grand copper-clad Dutch ovens you can put everything in the pot, cover it tightly and forget it. When the dinner is cooked, serve it right from the gleaming, stainless steel oven.

So here are suggestions for March dinners that will keep the family budget in line.

DUTCH OVEN DINNER

Meat for a Dutch Oven Dinner may be either beef or lamb, or the two can be combined. In any case you can use a very inexpensive cut of meat—shin beef or shoulder or breast of lamb. The secret of a Dutch oven dinner that is rich and flavorful, with an appetizing brown gravy, is to brown the meat and some of the vegetables before adding the water. Then give it mystery and subtlety by means of herbs and seasoning—and cook it long and slowly.

For a beef dinner, cut 3 pounds of shin beef in small pieces and roll in flour. Melt a piece of suet in the Dutch oven, and when the fat is hot brown the meat. Add 2 carrots, cut in small pieces, a white turnip, and 2 or 3 small onions, sliced. When the meat and vegetables are nicely browned, add just enough water to cover and season expertly. Salt and pepper to be sure, a dash of paprika and a bit of bay leaf go into the pot. A few sprigs of parsley, several outside stalks of celery and some leek. Then crumble a bit of basil, chervil and rosemary for a bouquet garni, and add to the ingredients.

Cover the Dutch oven, turn the flame low and let the dinner cook slowly. About 45 minutes before the meat is done, add the rest of the vegetables so they will be whole; peas, carrots, string beans, potatoes and small white onions.

CHEESE DUMPLINGS

1 cup of flour
2½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. grated cheese
2 tbsp. shortening
½ cup milk

Sift the dry ingredients; add the liquid to make a soft dough. Drop by spoonfuls into the Dutch oven and steam, tightly covered, for 10 minutes. The trick of making the dumplings light and fluffy is to see that they do not sink down into the liquid, but rest on the meat and vegetables.

Here's something in the way of a vegetable dinner that is different and has a surprisingly new flavor:

MENU

Vegetable Pie
Cabbage Salad
Sour Cream Dressing
Baked Rhubarb Pudding
Coffee

VEGETABLE PIE

4 tbsp. shortening
5 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. celery salt
12 small white onions
½ tsp. paprika
1 cup of cooked peas
½ cup string beans
½ cup lima beans (fresh or dried)

3 cups of carrots
Melt the butter, add the flour and stir until smooth. Add the seasonings and the milk. Stir until smooth and thick and boil for several minutes. Add the vegetables and pour into a large baking dish. Cover with crust, and sprinkle with bacon cut in small squares. Bake in hot oven for 20 minutes.

BAKED RHUBARB PUDDING

7 ¼-inch slices bread
4 tbsp. butter
4 cups rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces

1 cup sugar
Butter bread on the loaf before slicing. Line bottom and sides of 1½-quart casserole with bread, buttered side toward the dish. Fill with rhubarb and sugar, and cover with bread. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 30 minutes. If rhubarb is very tart, more sugar may be added. Makes 6 servings.

OUR DAILY CITATION: Posthumously, to Major Stanley K. Robinson, of the United States Army, who lost his life last week over Macassar Straits while helping to defend Java. Despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, he led his squadron into the heart of the attack and refused to bail out, even when his plane was riddled with bullets. America had no greater flier than Major Robinson.

"WORK OR FIGHT!"—the slogan of the National War Labor Board of 1918. Associated Press dispatches from Washington say that "work or fight" legislation is soon to be sought of Congress by the Administration.

That will mean that, to save the country in this great crisis, every able-bodied man will be required to do his "bit"—either in the Army, the Navy, the Air, in arms production, Civilian Defense or by aiding in keeping at a high level the morale of the people. The program of "work-or-fight" in 1918 laid it down as a rule that no man or organization could continue to give its energies to "unessential occupations."

We emphasize these two words because if the Administration and Congress are going to give us a drastic "work-or-fight" law, it should be the example by abolishing as many of the Government non-defense activities as are consistent with public safety. The Government is "toughing." There is no question about THAT.

But is it putting one hundred per cent of all its energies into NECESSARY WORK?

It has been estimated that $300,000,000 of the people's taxes and their Defense Bond and Stamp investments is being spent on organizations, bureaus and commissions that are radical political hangers from the riotously extravagant days of the political New Deal.

Money that is being spent for unnecessary projects NEITHER WORKS NOR FIGHTS. IT WASTES.

As we pointed out the other day, the National Youth Administration, the CCC, the Railroad Retirement Board, the Rural Electrification Administration and many activities of the Office of Civilian Defense are expenditures that should be lopped off.

They NEITHER WORK NOR FIGHT.

The Federal service from Spokane to Key West and from Brownsville to Bangor is honeycombed with what President Roosevelt so aptly terms "parasites."

Most of the parasites do very little—or no—work and certainly they are doing no fighting.

So if we are to have a "work or fight" law let the Administration begin by cleaning house NOW of all the non-workers, non-fighters and New Deal fat tabbies who are still lapping up the taxpayers' cream that gushed in tidal waves from the Treasury Department during the era of Tugwellism.

There will still be plenty of loyal and useful employees in the public service to perform the NECESSARY departmental services.

SUGAR HOARDERS

—housewives who have been buying and hiding this precious food should "divvy up" with their neighbors, government officials are suggesting.

Mr. Dan A. West, consumer chief of the Office of Price Administration, enthusiastically indorses this idea.

"Rationing means share and share alike," he says. "If we are really serious about distributing the burdens of this war fairly, here's a good chance for us to begin it in our communities and neighborhoods."

We agree with Mr. West. We are all in this conflict, and we must expect to share the hardships just as we hope to share the fruits of victory.

The brave young men with General MacArthur in beleaguered Bataan are not asking anybody else to accept their suffering and hardships.

Surely we who remain at home ought to be willing to make a few sacrifices.

WOMEN DRESS FOR MEN

Editorial writers have long suspected it. Now Miss Hattie Carnegie, far-famed designer, confirms it.

And because she knows that gentlemen in and out of the armed forces need cheer and stimulation after such events as the slap at Pearl Harbor and the near knock-down blow at Singapore, Miss Carnegie is advising fashionable ladies to wear exciting things like rainbow-hued ostrich jabots, provocative hug-me-tight jackets and reckless hats of "passion pink" and "jealous green."

Blackouts are necessary and proper for coastal cities.

But Miss Carnegie cannot see why the eclipse should be extended to women's wardrobes.

This is a sensible view. Soldiers, sailors and marines have a sufficiency of uniforms while they are on duty. They want to see their wives and girl friends looking pert and gay when they come home on furloughs.

On The Side

Bathsheba
To whom none ever said sent
No weather cat
Ever sat on a mat
O'er right a cat.
Rapun, cat.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

(THERE have been many famous epitaphs for dogs written by celebrated men but Whittier is the only great man who ever wrote an epitaph for his pet cat. . . .) "In your photo you look as if you had a mouth full of much," writes a young woman of Manhattan. "Your expression is the sweet, tragic one of a dumpy bullfrog" is what a Baltimore client says of my published likeness. And so it goes. This is indeed a hard life for a sensitive young fellow. . . . Bostonian says he made three popular-priced safety razor blades last two years. His method was to use a different blade each day. Claims the two-day rest given each blade made it last longer.

PASSING BY: ELEANOR R. KENNEDY. Actress of films. Eddie was, at the age of 16, an expert auto mechanic in Columbus, Ohio. He worked for Fager, the man who introduced the kitten and dove to automobiles. If you can remember when automobiles had the right-hand drive you are asked an old-timer. . . . Miss O'Brien. She was born in Tennessee and educated in Columbia and Bombay. Her father was a British army officer. Other soldier's daughters who became film stars are Gloria Swanson, child of a warrant officer in the U. S. Army, Ann Harding whose puppy was a U. S. Army colonel, and Marlene Dietrich, whose father was killed in action in World War I. . . . Zasu Pitts. She made her first public appearance playing a starving Armenian in a tableau in a show given by the girls of the Hollywood Studio Club. On her second appearance Miss Pitts rendered that mournful wail which starts:
Of all and words, best is,
Ain't these the best?
Some other woman saw him first.

SIDEGLANCES: "The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog" continues to be the most used typewriter test sentence. "Some settlers suggest settling Southern settlements in succession" is the popular telephone test sentence, and might make a good sobriety test sentence. My favorite test sentence is that used to test the teletype: "Julia, timid coquette, why go Zanzibar if you love Mac?" . . . An experienced student of the matter of why men leave their wives says the causes leading all the rest are "poor and cheap cuts of meat for dinner." . . . According to the caption on a news photo, bicycling is becoming more popular among matrons, young and old, and as a costume many of the ladies are wearing something called culottes. The client who sent the clipping with the picture of a lady bicycle rider wearing culottes has written on it:
Girls who grow lots
Shouldn't wear culottes.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS:
Q—My daddy is a cigar smoker, too. He says no girl should ever marry a pipe smoker. What do you say? A—On this matter can only point out what Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees once said: "The pipe is a symbol. It means the smoker is satisfied with himself and the world and would like to sit around in slippers and bathrobe and dream." Also, an employment manager, naturally a great student of men, once observed: "Pipe smokers are as a rule calm and placid but in his declining years a pipe smoker inevitably grows hoarse, goes into long silences and ends up talking to himself." . . . Q—Was the United States invaded by an enemy force in 1915? A—Don't know whether the term "enemy force" could be used in a description of the incident, but in 1915 Pancho Villa and his men attacked Columbus, N. M.

PLEASE NOTE: In Los Angeles there are doctors named Slaughter, Coffin, Fate and Graves. . . . "Men with big feet," says Bellamy Brooks, "are usually fine fellows, generous, slow to anger, dependable and make exceptionally good husbands. . . . Keep that in mind young woman; when you meet a man for the first time take a look at his feet. . . . What became of that night spot entertainer, Bob Steele? His act was a little bit different. He drank a gallon of beer from a glass jug and then ate the jug. . . . It was Nancy Hale who claimed: "A married woman's greatest interest is her child. Her greatest problem is her husband. Her greatest desire is for her own development apart from her husband and child."

ASIDES: You have heard of some long shot winners on race tracks, but how about some of the same in business deals? Miss J. V. Citizens, for example, invested $100 in the original Ford Auto Company and later on sold her stock for $355,000. That's 3550 to 1.

AS TO THE COURAGE of Negro troops, all you have to do is to remember the 15th Infantry in World War I. This Negro regiment was under fire for 191 days—longer than any AEF outfit in France. The 15th had no prisoners taken, gave up no ground and suffered 40 per cent casualties. Private Henry Johnson of the 15th attacked 25 Germans single handed and routed them. . . . The Department of Labor, discussing feminine defense industry workers, says a woman's lifting strength is half that of a man's. Her pulling strength is two-thirds. And that women are superior to men in dexterity and patience. However, the women in a general way are not as reliable as men because they get sick so much oftener.

Broadway's Voice

TAKE OFF UNIFORMS, COLUMNIST SAYS

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, March 9—I am beginning to deplore the tendency of women in branches of war service to wear their uniforms after "working hours" and to such places of light amusement as the Stork Club, the 21 bar, and El Morocco's Champagne Room. The number of these seems to be increasing lately, and I think the trend is a bad one, for at least two reasons.

First, it destroys the symbolic effect of a uniform on a woman. A uniform proclaims "I am working. I am busy. I am efficient." But when a woman's uniform is worn off duty, when it enters a cafe and serves as a background for a whisky and soda, when its wearer does the rumba, then it loses its value as a symbol of service and discipline.

I certainly don't think that a girl who works hard in the Red Cross or the AWVS should refrain from having a drink or going dancing afterwards, but I maintain that she ought to change into mufti before she does it. A uniform that proclaims "I am working" looks a little silly when its wearer is playing.

GREER GARSON

THERE IS ANOTHER, and perhaps even sounder reason for not wearing uniforms at night that has been advanced to me by the male element. Gentlemen in and out of the services have made it clear to me in a number of discussions that while they think girls in uniform look pretty natty behind a desk at noon, they think girls in uniform look pretty drab in a cabaret at midnight. One young and sentimental dough-bird told me he had a quite horrible experience last week when, after dreaming for several days about the doll-like loveliness of his sweetheart, whom he was to see when he got his leave, the big day came and he arrived to take her to dinner . . . and found her waiting, brisk and military, in her uniform!

The effect on his morale, he said, was soul-shattering.

Army and Navy wives, of course, understand this point and have always constituted a set that dressed very prettily and whipped into evening gowns at the drop of an invitation . . . but the rest of the female population is going to have to do a little learning along these lines.

ASIDE FROM THE GIRLS who own uniforms, there is a whole school of women who believe they ought to "dress down" in wartime, even to the point of not wearing an evening dress until the last shot has been fired. Hollywood's recent Academy Award dinner was a silly example of this—and I say silly because of all the women who attended in street clothes I will bet a defense bond there was not one who didn't have five perfectly good evening dresses hanging in her closet. Nobody saved a cent by going in daytime attire; the only effect was to make the celebration look drab.

Well, I don't believe in looking drab in wartime. I believe in looking as cheerful as possible on (if needs be) a drab budget. I don't think it's necessary to keep up with every merchandising fad and have a facial a day and buy the latest shade of "Slapajap Red" lipstick to assist morale—but on the other hand I don't see who is helped (except the manufacturers of plain black dresses) if we all go around looking like mourners.

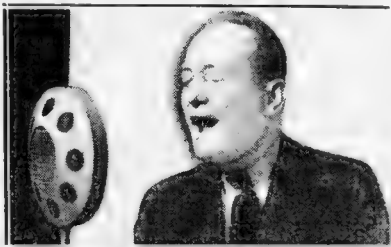

I WONDER who'll attend the premiere of Luis Rainer's revival of "A Kiss For Cinderella." It's scheduled to open on March 10th—the Night of the Navy Relief show. . . . Most generous night-climber I've ever observed from an adjoining destroyer, is Lou R. Maxon, a quiet-looking, red-haired Detroit, who gives out ten and twenty and hundred dollar bills with the ostentation as if they were dimes and quarters. The hat check girls at the Stork and other bistros invariably get ten or twenty, the waiters ditto, and when he's pleased with dinner he sends down fifty dollars to the chef. At Christmas time, he sent a check for $500 to be distributed among the help. When 'e sees ladies of his acquaintance at nearby tables, he sends out and has orchids delivered to them, male friends get champagne. And all this with no Diamond Jim Brady ostentation; he just sits back, the quietest fellow in the room, enjoying himself. . . . Gayest and most interesting Hollywood star to hit Broadway in many months is red-haired Greer Garson. She tells she feels she's finally become an "oomph" girl. Reason? She had a still picture rejected by the Hays office as too naughty!

BOSTON after DARK BY GEORGE HOLLAND

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: Colin Kelly's bombardier—the man who actually drew the fatal bead on the Jap battleship of "the Haruna class"—has just been identified publicly by another member of the heroic Kelly crew as (w "M. Levin" "M. Levin," like the others of Kelly's comrades in that heroic attack, apparently escaped by parachute. . . If a Kelly-Levin collaboration has worked so famously already in the war, can't we see a picture of the living half of the team?

HANSON W. BALDWIN, the expert who was a one-man writing lobby for bigger and better battleships, now says that the war will be settled in 1944, which in case you are absorbed in 1941 figures while making out your income tax, is this year . . . If he's right, we won't have time to commission enough battleships to make much difference . . . Mention of income tax connotes a thought that the work-swamped members of Collector of Internal Revenue Thomas B. Hassett's staff are beginning today their toughest week of the year, and if you can make it a little easier for the boys in the Federal Building they'll certainly be grateful.

A FEW BLOCKS NORTHWEST of the Federal Building, Collector of Taxes James W. Hennigan and his staff, under the quiet and wholly competent supervision of Director Elmer E. George, are enjoying a seasonal breathing spell. The peak having been cleared two weeks ago from the state's annual bout with John Q. Public in the matter of income taxes. The "breathing spell" means merely that Collectors Hennigan and his aides can now clear their desks in a normal working day, rather than in the 12 to 15-hour stints to which they have become inured. . . . Here is a department whose performance has been so faithful and able that it neither figures in the news nor as a subject of attack for the chronic letter-writers who sign themselves "Constant Reader." . . . In these days, that means a great deal. . . . And it would do Commissioner (of Taxes) Henry Long's battered heart good if he knew how loyal to him Collector Hennigan and the other boys on the firing line really are. . . . For the most heckled official in the state service, as Commissioner Long long (no pun) has been, this should be some consolation. . . . So, to be finished with the unpleasant subject of income taxes, this is the week, my friends. . . . Today or tomorrow will be excellent days for filing re-

Patriotic Song of His "Over There" Calibre Sought tunes . . . Collector Hassett's staff would appreciate even this slight relief from the eleventh-hour rush.

LACK OF ROUSING patriotic song (nearly a real "hit," let alone the "big" song seems to have developed a "hit") continues to tick a great many citizens. . . . The column is aware that an "Over There" or a "Tippecary" would be helpful to morale, although the sea-born American troops we hear have adopted "White Cliffs of Dover" as their favorite, and this might develop into the big song of the war. That would be a sad eventuality. . . . For one reason, "White Cliffs of Dover" has an English locale, and for another, it is too reminiscent of other songs. . . . The great trouble with the "So Long, Mamas (I'm off to Yokohama)" and "We Did It Before" and "We'll Do It Again" type of song is that they are too boastful. . . . On the playing fields of America, when Notre Dame or Cornell or Columbia have gone into battle—on the gridiron, mostly—the spirit before the battle invariably has been anything but boastful. . . . Certain football mentors, (Lou Long, Frank Leahy and Gl Dohne) have been consumed pessimists in strategical aims, mainly. . . . but their great teams have the sour before-game moans. . . . When George M. Cohan wrote his immortal "Over There," he wasn't thinking in a spirit of braggadocio, which is unbecomingly un-American. . . . George merely promised "The Yanks are comin', the Yanks are comin'—and we won't be back 'til it's over over there." . . . Tin Pan Alley is talking more like contiguous Jacobs Beach, "We'll moider de bum" than like the less phoney and more modest America Cohan knows and loves so well. . . . "We'll moider de bum," sure enough, but let's talk about it after the facts—for a change.

NEW ROLE AWAITS MICKEY ROONEY

M. H. C. Koozebi

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 9—For a 1937 actor who did such a swell job in the two-day stage play, "The Wokey," is back among us. He has returned to play one of the leading roles in "A Young Man From Mickey Rooney's next movie. Next we want to learn, because "Human Comedy," the William Saroyan script is not ready for Rooney. So he will report first to Norman Taurog, his director, and John Considine, Jr., who will produce this timely little number.

The story in George Oppenheimer's series is that it will go well both in England and the U.S. A. It's the story of a 100-year-old American, old woman.

doubtful if the British Government will send him, and Bebe Daniels to leave now.

GIADSWHILF SPEARS, vice president of United Artists, whose reputation for veracity and fairness is well known, says the Hayes office has no reason to object to Gypsy Rose Lee's "G-String Murder." Says Grad: "We are confident that 'G-String Murder' as a motion picture tastefully produced, will be a success." Another protest comes from Simon and Schuster, publishers who say the New Yorker is working with Miss Lee on a series of autobiographical sketches to show her side of the story. "We are not at all concerned," says Mr. Simon. Apparently, United Artists has no objection to "G-String Murder" which is scheduled for release in New York last.

WHAT A SWELL PRODUCE! "We sure enjoyed it," pointed out to me a friend who is a M. G. M. talent scout. "Robert Young and Maureen O'Hara are a fine team, and a few days ago, after a long search, we found the White House and in the White House we saw you." Alas, the day of young and beautiful people is over. The day of the middle-aged is here.

It is the only thing that comes to mind that you are an American, the whole picture, I step perfectly what I mean, when I put it as long as long, for this and the right and not a word where it should not with the same, the only

Draftees Home As Prank Ruins Records of 30

Thirty draftees who left Watertown for Ft. Devens in high spirits today were back home, and one of the group, Frank Waldron, 22, of North Beacon st., Watertown, faced serious charges in connection with loss of service records which caused the round trip.

Waldron, according to the FBI, playfully grabbed the service records for thirty draftees charged with delivering them to Devens without their names, and tossed them out of a train window near Concord.

He was charged with tampering with force and violence hindering and interfering with a military function of the selective service act.

Ft. Devens officials turned the 30 draftees men back at the gate and returned them to Watertown by bus to obtain new service records.

Authorities today said the entire group will have to go through the complete induction process again since the ruined records cannot be duplicated.

FBI agents searched the light-of-way next Concord and picked up torn scraps of the records but none of them could be completely pieced together.

Waldron was arrested upon his return to Watertown by Police Chief John F. Mennone and turned over to Federal authorities.

Ramon Novarro, Hollywood's romantic star, whose name will always be associated with the greatest screen productions, headlines the revue at the Latin Quarter in his night club debut. Mr. Novarro sings several songs including the always popular "Pagan Love Song."

Here's a hint for busy housewives—a sugarless recipe, which is very popular these days. Make a beef stew. Well, is there any sugar in a beef stew? Speakin' of sugar, the way things is gettin', do you think a diabetic could be accused of hoardin'?

Sombody wrote me about etiquette last week—about puttin' elbows on the table. Well, I think that one elbow oughta be allowed for drinkin' coffee an' two when eatin' spaghetti, but otherwise, I'm against it!

Jack Mahoney, former rep for famous music publishers is now wid me as my Grill me.

pleasant tables... charming Lucille LaMarr flashed by on skates that sparkled in the spotlights... a manly group of U. S. Ensigns glided their pleasure to find themselves in such a place of warmth and splendor... the Dorothy Lewis Ice Show at the Copley-Plaza Oval Room was "in high"... all but Lucille LaMarr, whose bright, professional smile hid tears when she saw those Ensigns... HER Ensign was not among them... he was somewhere in the Pacific... alert and alone in the dark on a slanting deck... Bossman Eddie Davis of the Fox and Hounds presents a Four Star show starting tonight.

Blinstrub's Village in South Boston features many of the "sock" acts from New York's smart night spots... here is a spot where one is always assured of a good time at prices that are reasonable... Boyd Heathen continues to draw much applause with his singing... For the dance set, it's Peter Dodge beating it out... Halfway Cafe in Roslindale giving defense stamps to guests on Friday evenings...

One Sunday afternoon a little long ago a bright-eyed cigarette girl looked up from her wares to envision a gorgeously gowned lady proudly carrying a tiny bundle of pink fluff into the lobby of the Lenox Hotel. The lady and her package-in-pink entered a flowered banked suite, which was also flanked with the social and political what-ho's of the day. Soon a lusty cry was heard. The news-and girl in the hotel had witnessed the first public performance of Boston-born Adrienne Matzenauer as she was christened in the arms of her famous diva mother. And every night Margaret Colman, now on the news counter at the Somerset, listens to the applause and remembrance with a third-while Adrienne exultantly with her singing in the Lenox Room.

The Pan-American Relations Dept... reports terrific biz at the December... many of the clubbers who couldn't get away this season are renewing good times in this gay rendezvous

Checker Cafe, Boston's newest disc and dance rendezvous, is featuring many Boston club favorites in their show. The management announces that the cafe will be open from noon on and have Don Humbert and his music string for the afternoon dancers and the tunes of Eddie Pilon's orch. for the evening set... Dorgan's Old Harbor House over the South Boston strandway has a new and sparkling entertainment bill

Joe Wagenbach's gay spot in Lawrence is an ideal spot for those who wish to get away a little distance from Boston... the very best in entertainment here and Joe is always on hand to see that Mr. & Mrs. Public leave satisfied...

Music and fun in copious quantities is always on tap at the increasingly-popular Village Barn, Bowdoin sq., where merry villagers gather to meet their friends and make the welkin ring. Manager Paul Mullins has built up a reputation for being that his patrons have humor and frolic, from 1 o'clock opening in the afternoon, until the early hours of the morning.

For the ladies this week!... the Cocoonut Grove is presenting for the entire week, an added attraction, the Max Richer Spring style revue... this should be most interesting... the regular floor show will prevail and the music remains under the capable Mickey Alpert... his guests nights on Thursday are tops... Khaki and blue with a dash of gold braid make the Vendome's Life and Drum Room a colorful spot.

Lionel Hampton, ace drummer man, and his popular orchestra will appear for the next two weeks at the Tic-Toc, popular rendezvous with the stay-up-laters, according to an announcement by Ben Ford. The Tic-Toc has the well-earned reputation of maintaining one of the smartest and fastest-moving shows in town.

A tuneless, sparkling revue, headed by Bobby LaMarr, returned by popular demand, and including Burke & Nichols and Ella May Waters, is the highlight of the popular Spotlite, whose Venetian Cappy's in No. Easton, getting capacity crowds. The policy of name bands and Manhattan talent has proven its worth in this popular spot.

Our orchid of the week to Belle Bafer, invincible blue-singer, whose inimitable style, like vintage wine, improves with the years... by all means make this a "Must" for the week... Ranny Weeks' suave eneeeing and orchestra for dancing... Charley Barnett with his walking-talking sax is keeping things lively for those who dance 'neath the sheltering palms of the Bermuda Terrace at the Brunswick

Billy Kelly, Hotel Essex emcee, offers a "Gags, Games and Gals" show this week, a la "Hellzapoppin." Featured is show-stopper Sally Harris, whose throaty vocalizing is establishing new popularity highs at the So. Station bistro... So intriguing is tassel-tongue Sally Keith that Crawford's customers set up a clamor at the slightest hint of her departure. So Sally stays and heads a lively show of rags and gals... At Ruby Foo's Den, Victor Moore of the Louisiana Purchase musical, enjoying his "suey."

Floor shows in the Blue Terrace Room of the Silver Dollar feature the hilarious antics of Billy Stone, master of ceremonies, and the sensational "Rubberneck" Holmes and Jenn, whose dancing is the first word. Other favorites on hand nightly include Gerlie Hayes in song specialties, and Jack Wyatt, amazing drum player. Entertainment in the Lounge is presented continuously from noon daily.

Featured in the new show at Ribby's... Jack Phillips, Mabel Kyle, Pat McKenzie and Tom Stockley.

War Secret Unmasked At Last

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

I'M THE AUTHOR of the statement that there are no secrets in a democracy. In fact five years ago I had to endure an hour's wait to find out how we stand.

BUT I DON'T think the government should keep the public in ignorance even if that's their natural condition.

STILL, there should be some military secrets in addition to the piggish-bum's bottle of hair dye.

WE ALL KNOW the story of the push-cart peddler asking his rival the downtown merchant how things were going and getting the answer: "Does Macy's tell Gimbel's?"

P.S. I would define a secret as a piece of information that is being kept for a rainy day.

SOLDIERS! SAILORS! MARINES!—Don't miss "SERVICE MAN'S FRIEND," the new information aid now appearing in the DAILY RECORD.

RECORD-AMERICAN WANT ADS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN Sports

By Bill Grimes

SANFORD, Fla., March 9

Pres. Bob Quinn has very sharp eyes during spring training trips. He can spot a loafer a mile away, and he grabs a few annually. But he has not been able to find one here. The Braves have a fine crowd of fellows in camp. They're all taking baseball far more seriously than they did a year ago. Possibly, it's the fine ball park or it may be the war.

Harvey W. Schaschke, who donated the Schaschke Cup to the Boston Retail Trade Store golfers, has been here since last Thursday. He is very much improved in health. He weathered the long trip well and gets out in the sun whenever Old Sol comes out. He hasn't missed a Braves' practice session.

There isn't a pitcher in camp under six feet, so it's no wonder Jess Lynn is. At 150, Phil Masi is the lightest of the lot. Masi's wife, Mrs. William P. Masi, wife of the commissioner of the Boston Post Dept., is recovering rapidly from her recent injury.

Up to now, Hal "Lefty" O'Connor, Brockton boy who played with the Taunton Lumber Co. in the Old Colony League last year, looks like a find. He's on the Evansville list and Bob Coleman is tickled to get such a prospect. O'Connor is a left-hand hitter, and also throws from the port side. He has hit the fences at Municipal Field and the balls actually ring off his bat.

Braves May Be Power Club This Year

Just before he left Oakland for camp Jim Tobin had Bill "Porthole" Posedel as his dinner guest. Sailor Bill is a chief helmsman and he sailed for facts unknown the following morning. You don't appreciate Ernie Lombardi's power with a bat until you see him in action every day. Casey Stengel is seeing it to that "Lombi" gets plenty of practice swinging that willow.

If Chief Ross' leg is right, the Braves will have more power hitters than have been seen in Boston National League uniforms in a couple of decades. They have another hitting pitcher in George Washburn, who, although he throws right handed, is a left handed hitter of far more than ordinary ability.

Dr. Paul F. Butler, William P. Long and Dr. Herbert H. Howard have managed to get in a few holes of golf every day. They are going up to Mt. Plymouth, which is about 16 miles north of here, to visit Art Johnson's course which is rated as one of the best in the state. Ernie Lombardi drove alone from Oakland, Cal., but Pat Ragan, the assistant trainer, will drive "Lombi's" car back to Boston. Walter Spahn, who dropped 15 pounds during the off season while working from midnight to 8 a. m. as a checker for the American Express, is beginning to gain weight.

Catchers Pick Up Speed Under Stengel

If the catchers cannot field bunts, it will not be the fault of Casey Stengel. He drills them daily and they are all getting so that they can come out from behind that plate and pounce on balls down either line with great dexterity. Just as soon as the rest of the squad reports, Bob Coleman will start turning the pitchers in the outfield. The hurlers are getting their legs in shape shagging flies during batting practice and during the "covering first" sessions.

Manager Stengel is the wind developer for the pitchers. After they have taken their turns on the mound, Ole Case grabs them for a jumper game which really gets them down. Al Montgomery asked permission to do some rowing in order to strengthen his arms and back and reduce his waistline. Neither Pres. Bob Quinn nor Casey Stengel is a believer in that type of exercise for a ball player, so Al is now a regular customer in Stengel's pep game.

You would think that Tony Cucinello was a bushier trying to make the big league instead of a veteran, from the strict attention he pays to instructions offered the players by Casey Stengel, George Kelly and Bob Coleman. He figures that there are angles of the game that he still can learn.

Braves Training Under Ideal Conditions

Peter McKenna, of Woburn, who has been going to training camps with Boston clubs since before most of the present day players were born, spends most of his time during practice sessions out around first base. He's sharpening up his eyes to do a little umpiring in Yankee games. After working out for three days, Max C. Meyer, a stockholder in the Braves, discovered that somebody had frightened the horses in his back. Having played baseball all winter Max felt that he was in good shape. He cried in judgment of his physical condition.

Sanford has an up and coming Chamber of Commerce. In fact, the Braves have never trained under more ideal conditions. The Chain Gang, which is decked out in green and white striped uniforms and assigned to caring for the grounds in and outside Municipal Field, go on a sit-down strike when they see Ernie Lombardi step into the batter's box.

FLORIDA TURF SCENE SWIFTS TO TROPICAL

MIAMI, Fla., March 9 (AP)—Altab was beaten again in the $50,000 Widener handicap, but racing men agreed today his creditable fifth place showing added tremendously to his stature as a Kentucky Derby hope.

His fifth and Woodvale Farm's Our Boots' fourth place were all the big name horses could salvage in one of the most surprising Widener races in Hialeah Park history. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's The Rhymer, an outsider that paid $32.50 even though grouped with two other horses in the field, surprised even his own jockey and trainer by coming up from nowhere to win.

E. R. Bradley's Best Seller, a 58-to-1 shot, was a head back in second place and another of the lowly "field" trio, Thomas Howell's Olympian, was third.

The Florida racing scene shifted today to Tropical Park for the opening of a 29-day program highlighted by the $10,000 Tropical Handicap, April 10.

IC4A BLUE LAM MAY TAKE CROWN FROM PENN STATE

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Some 10,000 spectators thought they saw Penn State win its first indoor IC4A track crown in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, but the triumph won't be official until the league's executive committee does a bit of investigating.

If league solons are convinced that the Norwood Gordon who mutilated at Penn State in 1932 is the same Norwood Gordon who took second place in the 1000 yard run and anchored the Nittany Lion two mile relay in the 1934 meet, it could be another year for the blue under a old seldom used rule.

This league law books that an athlete must complete his IC4A competition within five years after his matriculation. If Mr. Gordon of 1932, he ran freshman and senior races until 1935, then dropped out of school for two years.

He competed again last season as a junior and this year as a senior, his allotted four years but stretched over six years.

Asa Bushnell, secretary-treasurer of the IC4A, said last night there was such a rule that I don't know when to say I'm new.

Les MacMurtrei, N. Y. U. coach, who wanted to have the 1934 IC4A meet at Madison Square Garden, was so busy that he couldn't get to the meet in New York.

A Richmond, Va. man, who said New York had been booked for the meet, said he had been told the meet was off. The truck hadn't been turned since 1932.

Charlie Yates Shifts Over to U. S. Navy

ATLANTA, March 9 (AP)—Charlie Yates, former champion of the United States, has been accepted by the U. S. Navy. Yates, who has been in the service since 1918, was transferred from the U. S. Army to the U. S. Navy. He will be assigned to the U. S. Navy's first class, and will be a member of the U. S. Navy's first class.

The Rhymer, which was whipped in a grade B handicap here last week, seemed badly beaten in the early going.

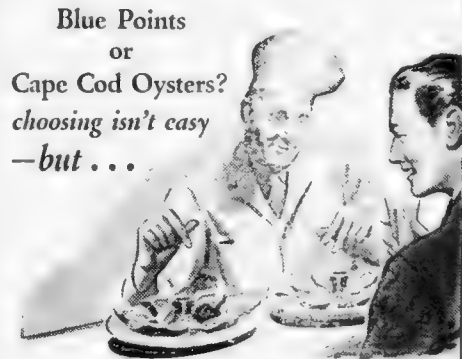

Then little Eddie Alcatraz, the same jockey who won the $25,000 Flamingo a week before with Des F. Whitaker's Requested, made a masterful bid for victory. He brought The Rhymer up with a tremendous surge of speed and took over the lead just at the wire. The Rhymer's spectacular victory left nine of America's best-thoroughbreds running along out of the money.

Dempsey Urges Kick and Gouge Army Training

PHILADELPHIA, March 9 (AP)—Jack Dempsey says America's fighting men ought to be trained to kick, gouge and bare their Axis enemies.

"There are no rules in this war," said the former heavyweight champion, here to referee a wrestling match, "and therefore he plenty of hand-to-hand fighting before it's over."

He recommended boxing, wrestling and all other sports as conditioning.

BOXING TEAMS LACK CLASS

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 9 (AP)—You can take the word of a man who is partly responsible for the situation that college boxing isn't what it used to be.

Paul Moss, who guides the fistic destinies of ex-college boxer Billy Soose, is that man. He dropped in here for a quick look at the finals of the 19th Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Championships and found little more than a pleasant place to spend a week end.

"The quality of the boxing is much lower than it was in Billy's day," Moss commented. "It used to be that nearly every college had a good team. The kind of boxers you saw in there last night were the ones that used to be in intra-mural bouts."

Moss and Soose were the principal cause of one rule that helped bring about the change. An old Penn State man, Moss became interested in Billy when he was fighting in amateur tournaments around Western Pennsylvania and saw to it that Soose went to Penn State.

COLLEGE DRAWS LINE

Billy, and a few other experienced fighters, proved so much better than the run-of-the-mill college boxers that the rule-makers barred all boys who had fought in AAU and "Golden Gloves" tournaments from intercollegiate competition.

"The kids now don't have a chance to learn," Moss argues. "There's practically no high school boxing, so the only boys who box in college tournaments are ones who didn't take up the game until they reached college age."

In spite of this handicap, a couple of last night's winners looked good enough to stir up more than ordinary interest. Gerald Andlar, the Syracuse 120-pounder who dominated his division, hit himself well and scored a terrific punch for a little while. In the final he failed to knock out Joe Cright, a Connecticut 125-pounder. Cright had been coached to fight defensively, in an effort to last and carried out his instructions well.

PEDEX UNIMPRESSIVE

Carlo Ottens, a tall, handsome middleweight from Western Maryland, also was impressive. In addition to a deadly left hook that brought him a quick knockout in the semi-final, Ottens showed a type of ring generalship that kept him completely in command during the final bout against Jack Gilmore of Maryland.

Bob Peden, the Army knockout artist who had to fight five rounds only once in three bouts to retain his 135-pound title, set off a quick brushoff from Moss. The kid didn't know enough to stop inside his fight, he explained. "They backed right up when he couldn't hit them."

Maryland's boys are among the best conditioned team of the season in the tournament, took down the team honors although they failed to win a single individual title.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9 (AP)—Best Suffer and Olney, all competitors, were observed. The final two three in Hirsch-Pick's Western Hand, in the first round of the winter season, the first of the season. The first prize of $250 for M. S. Payne, Whitney and paid backets $242.40 for 32.

NEW YORK—Heavyweight champion Billy Conn, after announcing plans to enlist in Naval Reserve, changed mind and joined Army as a private.

EAST LANSING, Mich.—Notre Dame won central collegiate indoor track meet, which Michigan won by three points with mile relay victory.

CHICAGO—Big Ten Conference approved football schedule limit of ten games for 1942, provided the two extra contests are with reserve teams.

Alsab Headed For Churchill Downs Oval

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 9 (AP)—Reports that Alsab, the faltering favorite, would pass up the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, May 2, for later stakes engagements were scotched.

Track Supt. Tom Young received a telegram from Alsab's trainer "Sarge" Sweeney at Hialeah that the 1941 juvenile champ soon would be shipped direct to the Downs.

"Have stalls ready for me any day now. I'm shipping direct to the Downs," Sweeney wired Young.

Alsab finished fifth in the Widener Handicap yesterday, a length back of Woodvale Farm's Out Boots who pounded in behind The Rhymer, Best Seller and Olympus.

Previously it had been indicated that Alsab, the shortest priced Derby winter book favorite in history until his Hialeah setbacks, might see preliminary Kentucky action at Woodvale Farm's course near Lexington. But the tone of Sweeney's message led to belief here among Hardboots that Alsab might not see further competition until Derby day.

Considering Alsab's showing to date, horsemen generally figure this would be a smart move. Acclimatization and "feel of the track" mean much where the Derby is concerned, especially with horses campaigned during the winter months, and under such a plan many experts would expect a degree of certainly but hardly improved Alsab which would parade May 2.

There still is the possibility that Sweeney, his charge rounding into form, might elect to ship him to Lexington for an overnight airing. But then, if he would put at least one race under his belt before the big heat there always is the Derby final stakes, scheduled for Tuesday of Derby week.

Shaughnessy Retains Title

STRATFORD, Conn., March 8 (AP)—Dick Shaughnessy of Dedham, ran 100 straight birds in the all-bird event at the Remington Gun Club range here to bring his high over-all score of 247,300 and retain his Middle Atlantic steel crown.

The young precisionist took the 110 class event Saturday with an 89 and tied for first in the 20 gauge at 93 before losing in the shoot-off to add to his errorless record.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, 34, of Chicago, won the women's title, while the men's team all-bird title went to the crack Nassau Skeet Club of Mineola, L. I., with a five-man score of 490.

Runners-up in the individual all-bird event, which attracted more than 100 shooters, were H. A. Fletcher of Westford, Mass., Rufe Watt of Laurel, Mich., W. W. Ripley of Washington, D. C., A. W. Warner of Fairfield, and Buzz Mitchell of Southport, all with 94's.

championship of Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament by sending five men to finals, although one captured an individual title. CHICAGO—Michigan's Bob Usher set new American indoor record of 1:41 in 100-yard dash at Big Ten Conference track meet, won by Ohio State.

NEW YORK—Heavyweight challenger Billy Conn, after announcing plans to enlist in Naval Reserve, changed mind and joined Army as a private.

Louis 'Works' On 4 Mates

PORT DIX, N. J., March 8 (INS)—Jo' Louis, warming up at this Army camp for his world's heavyweight title defense against Abe Simon in Madison Square Garden on March 27, pummeled four sparring partners in a four-round workout which left onlookers impressed with his fine condition. Victims of the champion's frenzy were Doc Amos, George Fitch, Ed the Blunt and George Nicolson, each of whom went one round with the Bomber. Among the spectators were 1900 soldiers.

Before the sparring sessions, Louis did two rounds of shadow boxing and after mixing it with his partners skipped the rope and did his floor calisthenics. The entire program left him as fresh as he was at the start, which seemed to be a fine testimonial for Army life.

Louis himself said he felt fine, and Minnie Simon, his trainer, declared with the Bomber that he'll probably catch his peak in about two weeks.

Joe J. P. Butrow of the U. S. Army also went through his usual military lessons during the day, when came after his early morning six mile run on the road. Today he will hit the road again and then test, resuming boxing drills on Tuesday.

Indians Take Reds Over Hurdles, 5 to 3

TAMPA, Fla., March 9 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians made each a Cleveland Indians point to run the Cleveland Indians 5 to 3 in a 10-inning game today. The Indians made early hits, lived errorless ball, but failed to show hitting strength in the clutch.

Al Mular and Rookie Earl Center held the Reds to one single in the first five frames. Jim Bagby yielded four safeties in the sixth.

SOX ROOKIES AIDED AT BAT BY PAUL WANER

SARASOTA, Fla., March 9—Most valuable man in the Red Sox camp here recently was Paul Waner of the Braves. Getting in trim with Joe Cronin's boys before the Braves reported at Sanford, Waner helped take the kinks out of the batting styles of first baseman Paul Campbell and outfielder Johnny Velaz.

It was Waner who made a major league hitter out of Vincent Di Maggio, and Waner promised to make major league hitters out of these two young Red Sox.

Campbell is the slick fielding, fast running rookie who played at Montreal last year after winning all popularity contests at Rocky Mount, Little Rock and Louisville.

Velaz is the fleet but weak-hitting outfielder who came to the Sox with Ken Chase from Washington in the deal for Jack Wilson and Stan Spence.

Two years ago, when Waner was with the Pirates, Vin Di Maggio was striking out with discouraging consistency. He was on his way back to the minors when Waner took him in tow.

CORRECTED WEAKNESS

"He could murder the low pitch," Paul recounted. "His weakness was with what should be the home run ball, right through the middle, letter high."

After working with him morning after morning, I discovered he was dropping his hip while awaiting the pitch. That put him in a position to hit the low one but he was missing the chest high one a foot.

"So I pitched to him by the hour, made him stop the dip, and sure enough he started riding the ball."

It was a bit ironical that Waner later came to the Braves and saw Vince beat his new club every series with his triples and home runs. Yes, Vince batted in more than 100 runs last year, putting him up with the big league leaders. Smart teaching, Mr. Waner.

Velaz, a right-hand batter, never could hit to right field. But after a day or two with Waner, he started zipping the ball into the right field corner like Joe Cronin at his best.

"I know I can dent that left field fence at Fenway," said Velaz today, "but I can be more valuable if I shoot the ball into the right field corner pocket occasionally."

WILLING TO LEARN

"I can remember myself scoring from first base at Fenway last year on a hit-and-run single by Cecil Travis. The ball does tricks against the wall out there, and it usually takes a fielder a long time to pick it up."

Campbell's great difficulty has been his inability to do anything damaging with the inside pitch. He was always hitting it off the handle.

Now Waner has him getting his bat out in front of him, swinging faster than has been his wont, and he's been pulling the ball down the right field line for distance hitherto foreign to him.

"I told him to keep calling for that inside ball every day during batting practice, and breaking his wrists more," said Waner. "It is a fault that can be corrected with sufficient application. I'm sure he'll overcome it because he's the most willing youngster I ever met."

"He's too good a ball player to be sticking in the minors because of a little weakness."

FINNEGAN.

NEWCOMER—Johnny Pesky from Louisville, whose hitting and fielding may earn him a regular spot in the Red Sox infield, made his bow against the Giants in the exhibition series and handled himself in major league style.

HEAVY HITTER—Dom DiMaggio takes his turn at bat as he prepares for another season with the Red Sox at Sarasota. Dom settled his salary problem and now has settled down for a season which he hopes will be his best.

Veteran Terms Ted 'More Valuable To U. S. as Player Than as Sailor'

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 9—The Ted Williams case was up for discussion. Some were for him. Some against. A successful business man of 50, a veteran of World War I, stepped forward and said:

"Has anybody looked at the situation from a monetary standpoint? Evidently the listeners hadn't, so the war veteran went on."

"Manpower doesn't win wars. Any nation the size of ours can raise enough manpower. It's money that counts, money to make bombs, money to build battleships."

"If Williams were to go into the Navy, as everyone is suggesting, Uncle Sam would get less benefit from him than if he played ball. Say Ted gets $20,000 for 1942, the government may take 50 per cent of it in taxes. That $10,000 will be enough to equip plenty of soldiers for the fields. Isn't he more valuable staying at home?"

"Williams needs money to stabilize his family affairs. No doubt about it. Otherwise he never would have been reclassified."

YOUNG'S CASE OVERLOOKED

"Isn't Babe Young of the Giants looking for deferment? Hasn't he been since before the Giants traded Mize to the New York club? You haven't heard much of Young's case have you?"

"The reason is simply because he battled .265. If he had hit .400 like Williams, he would be the goat. Yet he will not benefit Uncle Sam by playing half as much as Williams, because his salary won't begin to approximate Williams'. And consequently won't be taxed so much."

The boys were mum. The veteran continued:

"If you were the sole support of your mother, and thought she would suffer undue hardships while you were in the service, would you enlist? Aren't there dozens of big league players in the same boat? Is it any worse for him to want his mother comfortable than it is for the other boys, about whom nothing is being said?"

PESKY WAITS CALL

There were a few weak rebuttals. Only the other day we were talking to Johnny Pesky. Sox rookie shortstop from Louisville, who was the most valuable player in the American Association last year.

Pesky is the Class 1-A of the draft, waiting to be called.

Pesky has a father who has been ill for 20 years, unable to work. His mother, too, is ailing.

There is one older brother, 30, who works for a pittance in a casket factory in Portland, Ore. There is one younger brother, 20, whom Johnny is sending through college and who will go into the service in a few months. There are three sisters. There are hospital bills.

Wouldn't it be better for Johnny's older brother to go into the Army and let Johnny be the head of the house than to make an entire family subsist on an iron-wage? Yet, I suppose, if Pesky were to be deferred out of humane reasons, there would be a lullaballo raised similar to Williams'.

It is well to weigh both sides of an argument before hurling rocks. It is traitorous to hurl "slacker" charges at a youngster when the government decrees he is not one.

Wouldn't it be more fitting to hurl "railroad" charges at the Minnesota draft board which voted 5-0 against Williams for non-repeal of his status? If the government saw cause to defer him, why is it that the Minnesota board did not? Registrants are supposed to be treated alike.

Most of the Sox are pretty mad at Williams for not enlisting. They figure the entire club will suffer as a result of Ted's stand. Yet isn't that being a little selfish?

"How will Ted take it?" is a popular question down here. "Bet the fans will ride him right out of the park."

Well, he's been in plenty of jams before and always worked his way out. Remember the feud he had with the writers and fans two years ago? He squared himself with the writers here last spring. As for the fans, he answered:

"I'll make them like me. I'm going to have a great year, and they're going to be cheering me before it's over."

He made them like him once. Who can say he won't do it again?

Fuller Defends Wrestling Title

Peter Fuller, Milton Academy, will defend his 165-pound wrestling title when the schoolboys swing into action Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Quincy High School in the Mass. Interscholastic Wrestling Tournament.

Members of the old South Shore League, Belmont, Weymouth, Needham and Quincy High Schools, Lawrence Academy, and Gardner High will probably be in the battle before entries close Tuesday with Leonard Anderson, Quincy High coach.

Wouldn't it be more fitting to hurl "railroad" charges at the Minnesota draft board which voted 5-0 against Williams for non-repeal of his status? If the government saw cause to defer him, why is it that the Minnesota board did not? Registrants are supposed to be treated alike.

LOU BOUDREAU PAGES INDIANS TO FAST START

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, MARCH 9, 1942

The Cleveland Indians, starting life anew with Lou Boudreau filling the shoes vacated by Roger Peckinpaugh and half a dozen pitchers trying to fill those left by Bobby Feller, are off on the right foot in baseball's grapefruit circuit, according to the Associated Press.

The Indians opened their spring training series by downing the Cincinnati Reds, 5-3, at Tampa, Fla., although they were out-hit 9-6 by the National League club, which also was making its exhibition debut.

INDIANS LEAD

That victory, coupled with the Yankees' first spring loss, put the Tribe at the top of the Grapefruit standings, the only team in action that hasn't suffered defeat.

Eighteen games have been played in the past nine days, with the Dodgers and the Athletics the only teams that have gone outside the major leagues.

At Havana, the Dodgers opened the Grapefruit season by taking a two-game series with the New York Giants. Then the National League champions got mixed up with a team of Cuban all-stars and wound up on the short end of a five-game series.

The All-Stars won the rubber game yesterday with a 3-0 shutout in the nightcap of a double-header after the Dodgers had squared the series by winning the opener, 6-3.

MAKES HAVE 500 MARK

The Athletics, training in California, have faced Pacific Coast League teams in a half-dozen games and boast nothing better than a .500 percentage. After winning two from Seattle and one from Hollywood, the A's dropped one to Los Angeles and two to San Diego, the last one yesterday, 5-4.

New York's champion Yankees, with six regulars still listed as hold-overs, won two in a row from the Cardinals, but the Cards injured the tables at St. Petersburg yesterday, 4-2, as three St. Louis pitchers gave up just that many hits.

After losing to the Red Sox Saturday for their third setback in as many starts, the Giants got over the hump yesterday with a 15-hit assault that swamped the Hose, 13-5, at Miami.

Gil Dodds, Rice Take Spotlight In C. U. Games

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—Track stars from a score of Eastern and Southern colleges and clubs compete today in the ninth annual Catholic University games, with the spotlight focused on Greg Rice, Gil Dodds and Al Blozis.

Rice, world champion two-miler, and Dodds, his greatest rival, may fight it out in a special two and a half-mile event.

In the event that Dodds elects instead to run in the Killion mile, Rice will give his opponents a handicap. Dodds bested N. Y. U.'s famed Les MacMillan in a 4,087 mile two weeks ago.

Georgetown's Blozis, king of shot putters, will back a group of good contenders in his specialty, but should win easily. Al will be trying to better his national indoor mark of 57 feet 4 inches.

Franconia Skiers Win Thorne Cup

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

FRANCONIA NOTCH, N. H., March 8—Four rugged ski runners—Roger Peabody, Sig Buchmayr, Norwood Ball and Sel Hannah—representing the Franconia Ski Club, today won the Thorne Cup relay race over a winding five-mile course that started at the top of Cannon Mountain, thus inaugurating the longest race on skis ever to be held in the East.

With the emphasis on team work rather than individual performances, this event was made a four-man team affair. It would have taken a superman to negotiate the entire ups and downs, twists and turns of this lengthy grin. As it was, the Franconia Ski Club's team combined time for the distance was 20:23-25 seconds.

Starting at two minute intervals, the first man shot from the gate at the top of the Taft Slalom Course one-half mile to the bottom, then climbing another one-quarter mile up the Saddle where the second man took the flag and snaked down the trail for over a mile to the Tucker Brook intersection.

Here the third skier made a short climb and then descended the Coppermine Trail, handing the flag over to the fourth man at Erdle Veil Falls. This anchor man then carried on with a cross-country jaunt to the finish at the Thorne Cup. A warm, sunny day made the going slow and sticky, and the last lap was the most tiring.

HANNAH SAVES DAY

Most exciting and dramatic was the finish of this classic. On the third lap, the Franconia team had lost its lead and was in fourth position. It was on the cross-country terrain that Sel Hannah took over, passing two men and making up seven minutes for his team.

In a stretch drive that resembled that of a race horse, this stalwart skier passed Len Woods of the Dartmouth Outing Club only ten yards from the final flag, leaving spectators breathless with excitement as Sel made a remarkable recovery from a near split.

The lead changed several times during the course of this race. It was a case of using several kinds of waxes for downhill, climbing and cross-country. Because of his sensational speed on the third lap, Hans Thorne pulled his Thorne House Ski Club team from fifth place to second.

The latter team was composed of John Seidler, Len Ahlgren, Hans Thorne, and Joe White. The third team to share in the medals was a second quartet also representing the Franconia Ski Club. These lads were Bobbie Ball, Fred Brooks, John Chapman and Norman Palmer.

PLYMOUTH TEAM FOURTH

Fourth to finish was the Plymouth Ski Club, represented by those teen-aged stars Billy Beck, who is only 12; John Hibbard, and Ollie and Eddie Cole. The Dartmouth Outing Club racers, fifth, were Bob Hamilton, Tom Genn, Ronny King and Len Woods.

SKI SCRIBBLINGS: Perfect conditions for spring skiing now exist on Cannon Mountain, towering fortress of the Notch. There was over five feet of snow on the summit with plenty of cover at the foot, although it melted a bit today.

N. Y. Rovers Rally To Tie Johnston

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Refusing to concede defeat although behind 3-0 late in the second period, the New York Rovers held their slim two-point Eastern Amateur Hockey League lead over Johnston by battling the Bluebirds to a 3-3 overtime tie.

The deadlock prevented the Rovers from insuring at least a tie in the final standings for the league's initial spot. Instead, they must win their two remaining games to keep ahead of the Bluebirds, who still have three more to play.

Avoid Aging 14 Years in 4

By Consulting John E. Warner

This young man has a fine head of hair and doesn't feel that he will ever be bald. Yet, his scalp is laden with dandruff, itches constantly and he loses a great deal of hair each day. Right now, a short period of the pleasant, low-cost, scientific treatment used by John E. Warner and Associates would rid his scalp of dandruff, check the hair-fall and normalize his scalp. He could keep this fine head of hair.

A year later the hair has receded at the temples and our young man is worrying about it. He douses his head with cure-all lotions and his scalp condition is growing worse. A free private consultation with John E. Warner would tell him that he could save the hair which he still has.

Three years later, it is too late to have a good head of hair but too late to save and improve the appearance of the hair that remains, through prompt treatment by John E. Warner and Associates. The Warner method of treatment is the most effective one because of years of research, study and experience.

Four years later, it is too late, his appearance is permanently marred, a serious handicap to anyone. A youthful appearance is necessary these days to success in the social and business worlds. Statistics show that as much as 85% of all baldness can be prevented if properly treated in time; but once you are bald you can never hope to regrow hair (except in rare cases of alopecia areata).

There is no charge or obligation for a private scalp examination and consultation. Fees for treatment are very moderate and are payable as the treatments are taken—not in advance. There is a separate department for women. The Warner offices are located at Suite 320, Little Bldg., corner of Boylston and Tremont Streets, Hub. 1705.
